Oil Order House President Says Recession
Will Be Over by May.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—(AP)—
President Robert E. Wood, of Ira, Roebuck & Company, foretold today an increase in employment in the consumers' goods industries by March or April. He told senate investigators, however, that three recent speeches by administration spokesmen had been "frightening to business."
Wood predicted the business recession would be over by May, and asked for modification, "but not real," of the tax on undistribut-ed corporate surpluses.
The stocky chief of the huge oil order house said President Roosevelt's message to congress had been "reassuring" to business men. He observed, however, in light of three previous speeches by administration men,
"business doesn't know what to expect."

Labor Leaders Testify.

William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, and Homer Martin, youthful CIO leader, also testified.
Wood, who laughingly described himself as one "economic royalty," who had been friendly to the administration, said the recession's effect on his company was a drop in sales, which by December had sunk to a $138,000,000 accumulation of inventories, the highest in the company's history.
"We stopped buying and started liquidating our inventories," he told the committee.
Wood mentioned as contributory causes of the recession the stoppage of government spending, the Federal Reserve Board's increase in reserve requirements, and the recession's action in "sterilizing" the money market. He said the recession was "sterilized," he said, and the rise in reserves should have been canceled in the fall.

"Economic Royalist."

When he turned to the question of a lack of "business confidence," Chairman Byrnes asked him to state what he attributed it to. One of his replies was:
"I always have been friendly to the administration, although I assume that I am an economic royalist."
"I have supported every reform measure that the administration has put in. But I can't agree with some of the things that have been done."

HERBERT WORTHEN
FOUND SHOT DEAD

Telegraph Chief Discovered in Room by Wife;

Served Here 30 Years.

Herbert C. Worthen, 60, general manager of the southern division of the Western Union Telegraph Company, was found shot to death last night in a bedroom at his home at 826 Penn avenue.

Mr. Worthen was found by Mrs.
Worthen about 8:15 o'clock lying on the bed with a pistol on the floor nearby, police report says.
A physician was summoned and Mr. Worthen was pronounced dead.

The bullet entered the mouth, passed through the head and came out at the base of the skull, patrolmen were told.

Mr. Worthen was in the bedroom by himself when the fatal shot was fired, and his wife and her first cousin, a Mrs. Spangen-burg, were in another room, the patrolmen said.

Coroner Paul Donehue announced an inquest would be held at 9:30 o'clock this morning at H.
M. Patterson & Son.

Besides his wife, Mrs. Sallie Worthen, Mr. Worthen is survived by his mother, Mrs. E. Alice Worthen. He was a native of Shelby, N. C., and attended Columbia University. His progress with the telegraph company was rapid, and shortly after becoming an operator in 1898, he was promoted to the general staff in New York.

He came to Atlanta more than 30 years ago. He was named general superintendent of the southern division and four years later was made general manager of the division.

Mr. Worthen was widely known in communications and railroad circles. He was a Mason, a Shriner, and had membership in the Piedmont Driving Club and the Capital City Club.

Bill (Worrier) Ward's willingness to "worry for folks" at Hapedrew an enthusiastic response from readers of The Constitution yesterday.

Scores of letters outlining worries were received, and Ward, true to his word, will begin "worrying" about them this morning.
He has an appointment with the "worrying rock" at 10 o'clock this morning, when he will start his duties as "everybody's unofficial worrier."
"I'm all set," he said last night.
"The letters sent to The Constitution have been forwarded to me.
I'm ready for some first-class, deep-dyed worrying. Why not?"
And he picked at random one of the letters which had been received.
The letter, signed with the initials W. M., contained two worries, and stated:

JACKSON DINNER
SET FOR TONIGHT

Georgia Democrats Have Shown Great Enthusiasm, Director Says.

Georgia's Democracy will band with its fellow Democrats over the nation in celebration tonight of Jackson Day with a dinner on the Ansley hotel roof. J. F. T. O'Connor, controller of the currency, and Pitt T. Maner, of Montgomery, president of the Young Democratic Clubs of America, will speak.

Jere N. Moore, of Milledgeville, managing director of the Jackson Day committee, said yesterday that tonight's event promises to be one of the most noteworthy Democratic affairs in the history of the state.

Good Response.
"We have had an unusually good response to our campaign last year," Moore said yesterday.
"The Democrats of our state have shown themselves to be highly enthusiastic over the nationwide success of the party and also have shown a deep desire that the su-premaccy of the Democrats shall be continued."

In connection with the Jackson Day observance, Moore and his committee have been conducting a fund-raising campaign over the state. Democratic stalwarts have been called upon to contribute $25 to the party's war chest and the donors are being invited to tonight's dinner.

The managing director said yesterday that widespread interest is being shown in the two speakers at tonight's dinner. O'Connor is expected to bring from Washington an address which will interest business and professional men, while Maner, a rising young leader in party affairs, will discuss the political scene.

DIXIE GOVERNORS
BACK WAGES PLAN

Seven Executives Indorse Principles After Conference With President.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—(AP)— Southern Governors pledged their support today to the administration's proposal to regulate industrial wages and hours.

Seven members attending a meeting of the Southeastern Governors' Conference adopted a resolution indorsing the principle of establishing "a floor for wages and ceiling for hours."

The action came in the face of a determined southern wage-hour opposition in the senate and house.

L. W. Robert Jr., executive director of the Governors' conference, said the resolution was given unanimous approval "so far as I know."

It was adopted during a closed afternoon session which followed a luncheon conference with President Roosevelt. Neither the White House nor members of the conference would say whether the chief executive had discussed the wage-hour bill with his luncheon guests.

The wage-hour resolution said:
"Be it resolved, that the Southeastern Governors' Conference goes unanimously in support of the wage-hour bill."

100 CHILDREN DIE
IN TERUEL BLAST

TERUEL, Spain, Jan. 7.—
(UP)—More than 100 children, removed from an orphanage by Rebel soldiers and herded into the catacombs of Santa Clara Seminary, were reported tonight to have been killed beneath tons of stone when Loyalist "dinamiteros" blasted the place.

Officials of the shell-wrecked orphanage, behind San Pedro church in Teruel's "old city," said that none of the children escaped when the Loyalist set off a big mine in a last effort to wipe out 200 or more Rebels entrenched within the seminary.

Scene of bitter fighting for 17 days, and that these were expected to surrender soon.

The government communique also said two companies of crack Navarrese troops, about 230 men, surrendered in a body.

The collapse of the hospital defenders came a little more than two weeks after they had barricaded themselves in the old quarter of the city after it had been occupied by government forces.

they were driven from building to U. S. Demands That Russia Reveal

If 'Mrs. Robinson' Is Under Arrest

MOSCOW, Jan. 7.—(AP)—The United States today demanded
Russia tell whether Ruth Marie Rubens, of New York—the mysteriously missing "Mrs. Donald L.
Robinson"—had been arrested and, if so, on what charges.

The formal note was presented to the foreign office on instructions from Washington after previous requests for information were unanswered.

The United States asked full details of Mrs. Rubens' disappearance from a Moscow hotel December 9. A week earlier her travelling companion, known only as "Donald L. Robinson," had vanished from the hotel next door to the American embassy.

The formal demand for information on the case which has created an international sensation was based on Washington findings that Mrs. Rubens was an American citizen. She arrived in Moscow November 6, with Robin-

BORAH DENOUNCES
ANTI-LYNCH BILL

Idaho Republican Says
South Is 'Handling Race Problem' Successfully.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—(AP)— Southern senators opposing the anti-lynching bill drew eloquent support today from Senator Borah, who denounced the measure as a "blow at the very heart of local self-government."

The Idaho Republican told the senate that the bill "rests on the theory that the people in the southern states are either unwilling, or unfit, to maintain the ordinary principles of self-government."

Borah took the floor when the senate convened and spoke an hour.

His colleagues turned their chairs toward him, listening with rapt attention. Borah paced back and forth behind his desk, his voice rising and falling to accent his address. He paused frequently to wipe his forehead.

Dilatary Tactics.
Southern senators began using dilatary tactics against the antilynching bill yesterday, and Senator Barkley, of Kentucky, the Democratic leader, threatened to call for "longer sessions" if their speech-making went on too long.

Foes of the legislation expressed hope they could keep talking long enough to force an agreement to shelve the bill. They said such an agreement might be possible when pressure for consideration of other legislation, dammed up behind the antilynching bill, became strong.

The anti-lynching measure would permit federal prosecution and fining of sheriffs and other officers who failed to protect prisoners from lynching, and would make communities in which lynchings occurred liable for payments to families of victims.

Senator Barkley made the opposition's task more difficult by calling for a senate session at 10 o'clock.

TAX ON SPENDING
AWAITS WET VOTE

Chairman Says Committee Won't Study Measure
Until Other Issue Settled

Two sales tax bills were introduced in the house of representatives yesterday as prohibition supporters doggedly fought attacks of repealists during house debate on the Thomas liquor tax bill. A vote is scheduled late Monday or early Tuesday on the Thomas bill.

The liquor battle developed into a nip-and-tuck affair with opponents to prohibition claiming victory and drys still refusing to predict the outcome.

Chairman George Sabados, of the temperance committee, and as such the spokesman for the repeal forces, predicted that the Thomas bill would be passed with votes to spare.

"Proper Way."

"The members of the house are beginning to realize that liquor taxes constitute the proper way to get the money the state and its counties must have," Sabados said. "I do not think that this assembly could adopt either a sales tax or a gross income tax and continue to let liquor go tax free.
We cannot saddle such a burden on the people until we have taxed the elements which are now escaping taxation."

Meanwhile, Representative Carmichael, of Cobb, who has announced he will support no more tax bills of any kind until liquor is taxed, asserted a score or more members have joined him in his stand.

"If this liquor proposal is defeated it will mean the end of all tax bills for this session," Carmichael said. "There is upwards of $4,000,000 a year awaiting collection in liquor taxes and we do not feel that other taxes should be imposed when liquor is not taxed."

"No Alternative."

Carmichael joined Sabados in forecasting approval of the Thomas bill.

"This legislature has no alternative," the Cobb representative said.

The sales tax bills were offered by Representatives Chappell, of Sumner, and Brewster, of Evans.
The Simmons gross income tax bill was introduced several days ago.

Chappell insisted that he would press for passage of his bill regardless of the outcome of the liquor vote. The bills were referred to the house ways and means committee, where Chairman Freeman, of Bibb, said there would be no meeting until disposal of the liquor bill.

"The house is too interested in the liquor bill to take time out

DATE OF ELECTION TO SHERIFF'S POST SET FOR MARCH 2

T. M. Middlebrooks, Frank Smith To Seek Post With County Commission.

Date for a special election to fill the post of Fulton sheriff, made vacant by the death of Sheriff J. I. Lowry, was fixed yesterday for March 2, the date of the county Democratic primary.

A hot fight was in prospect as two candidates loomed as contenders—J. D. Bazemore, acting sheriff, and J. C. "Mott" Aldredge, who ran a strong race in the last election.

Aldredge was at the courthouse yesterday sounding out the situation with political friends but would make no announcement. He said he would have a statement by Tuesday.

Commission Race.

Meanwhile two other names were added to those of Dr. Charles R. Adams and Hugh C. Couch as candidates for the county commission in the primary. T. M. Middlebrooks, East Point merchant, announced he would run for the position now held by Dr. Adams.

Frank Smith, for 15 years connected with the Fulton county tax investigator's office, announced informally as a candidate.

The announcement came after Smith met with a committee of friends at a downtown hotel last night. Official announcement will be made later, Smith said.

Smith, who lives on Evans drive in Sylvan Hills, said his platform would be revealed in his formal announcement.

Middlebrooks, who lives on the Roosevelt highway below College Park, was a candidate in the special election last fall for the commission post made vacant by the death of Edwin F. Johnson. Middlebrooks threw his support to Troy C. Chastain, who was elected, with the statement he would run this spring.

C. J. Vaughan, five times mayor of Roswell, and Frank F. Smith, a county tax investigator, were considered likely candidates for the commission but neither has entered the race.

No definite announcement. No definite announcements have been made for the three municipal judgeships to be voted on in the primary, but all incumbents have indicated they will be candidates.

Candidates for the sheriff's post must qualify with the county ordinary 15 days before the election, while primary candidates must qualify with J. Wilson Parker, secretary of the Democratic executive committee, before January 31. There is no entry fee for the sheriff's election, while commission and judgeship candidates must pay $500 and $600, respectively.

Headquarters for the executive committee will be set up Monday in room 715, Atlanta National Bank building, Parker announced.

Robinson was taken to Grady hospital and was dead on arrival. He received a fractured skull and numerous lacerations about the body.

Simpson told police the driver of a 1934 model car was headed south and they were walking north. The car was zig-zagging from side to side, he said.

months, see the third American ambassador since diplomatic relations were resumed four years ago. William Christian Bullitt, first ambassador there, is now ambassador to France. Davies was there almost exactly one year.

Much importance is attached to the President's sending, in this difficult international moment, of one of his trusted lieutenants to London, capital of another great democracy, with which the chief executive is aligning himself, at least on ideological grounds.

State Department attaches say 1938 will be possibly a decisive year in the squaring of the democracies and the dictatorships, either for peace or for conflict. Close relations with Great Britain will be maintained, especially after the conclusion of the Anglo-American trade agreement.

Dodd Returns Home.

The President's announcement of Hugh Robert Wilson's appointment to Berlin followed by a few hours the arrival in New York of William E. Dodd, who recently resigned the post in bitter antagonism to Nazi principles.

Wilson is expected to restore smoother personal relations with Hitler's government. He speaks excellent German and has spent a number of years in that country. He was assigned to Berlin as secretary of embassy in 1916, during the World War. After the war he was again sent to Berlin, as embassy counselor.

Significant is the fact that today's changes throw the balance of United States ambassadors decidedly in favor of "career-men"—diplomats who came up through the ranks of third, second, first secretaries and counselors, as opposed to the non-career men, or political appointees. There are now nine career men out of 16 ambassadors and one vacancy.

F.D.R. WARNS PRESS ON MAIL SUBSIDIES

Says U. S. Should Discontinue Aid to Publications.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—(AP)—Publishers of newspapers and magazines received an invitation from President Roosevelt today to take the initiative in reducing postal subsidies which he said they now enjoy.

In response to a question at his press conference, he said he believed the time had long since passed when the government should continue mail subsidies to newspapers and magazines.

Asked if he intended to do anything about it, he suggested that the press take the initiative.

TWO SHOT IN BACK IN GROCER HOLDUPS

Pair Fells Cobb Storekeeper After He Gives Up Part of Cash.

BULLETIN.
Tom Watson Adcock, West End groceryman, died early this morning of wounds received last night when shot by negro hold-up men.

Holdup men with uneasy trigger fingers held up two grocerymen in the Atlanta area at closing time last night, shot them in the backs and escaped with portions of the day's receipts.

A white man robbed a storekeeper in Cobb county of $25 and two negroes took $6 from the pockets of a West End merchant—overlooking $12.

W. W. Capes Sr., 77, of Austell, Route 2, was taken to Crawford W. Long hospital and Tom Watson Adcock, 40, of 220 Lookout street, the West End groceryman, was admitted to Grady hospital. Both were reported in serious condition.

Son Gives Chase.
As the unidentified negroes ran from the grocery store at 306 Laurel avenue, S. W., Fire Captain H. A. Ewing, of station No. 3, missed in his attempt to trip them. Ellis Barrett Jr., of 1590 Morningside drive, son of the ex-alderman gave chase, following one negro on foot nearly a block before losing him in an alley, police said. Barrett returned and took Adcock to the hospital.

"I was checking the day's receipts when I heard someone enter the store," Adcock said from the operating table. "Thinking it was Henry (Robinson, the negro delivery boy), I didn't look up. I had just put $18 in my pocket. "When I turned around, I looked down the barrel of a single barrel shotgun held by one of two negroes. They ordered me to turn around and walked to the rear of the store. There one of them removed $6 from my pocket and asked me if that was all I had. I told him all the money was on me. (He evidently overlooked the other $12.) They shot me from behind in the left shoulder and ran."

Shot in Stomach.
Capes sitting in his closed store when he saw someone at the window, W. W. Capes Jr., Atlanta postal employee, told police his father said. Seeing the pistol, Capes Sr. started upstairs to get his gun but was shot in the back, the bullet piercing his stomach, as he reached the top step, the son said.

The elderly man refused to tell where his money was hidden and the bandit slugged him several times, Capes Jr. continued. The bandit found the safe and escaped with $25, police said.

Capes struggled to his feet and hobbled next door to his son's house.

known Cubertson exponent and player in her own right.

Daily lesson programs will consist of 45-minute blackboard talks, followed by supervised play, during which hands illustrating points covered in the lessons will be given to the classes to study, and play. During this period, players will be at liberty to ask questions when problems arise concerning bids, leads or plays.

More experienced players attending the course will compete in The Constitution's rubber bridge sweepstakes events which will be conducted as an added feature after each lesson period. Individual scores will be accumulated and prizes awarded to high-scoring players in each of the three sections.

For the convenience of all Constitution readers, a special bridge school coupon will be published regularly throughout the series, entitling the holder of the coupon to attend any class for 35 cents. Without The Constitution coupon, the regular instruction fee is $1 per lesson. Constitution readers should make sure to take advantage of this reader-privilege, as each coupon saves 65 cents a lesson.

The Constitution brings Mr. Sharpsteen to Atlanta for the purpose of making it possible for Constitution readers interested in contract bridge to receive first-hand authentic instruction from one of the country's outstanding authorities at a nominal cost. All classes in the series will be open to the public.

Watch for the first coupon appearing in today's Constitution and make plans now to attend one of the opening sessions Monday and take advantage of the entire course.

2 SALES TAX BILLS OFFERED IN HOUSE

Liquor-Levy Bloc Insists on Whisky Revenue First.

for any other measure," Freeman declared. "The ways and means committee will meet when the vote on liquor has been taken."

Both bills provide for token collections similar to those in Alabama.

$5,000,000 Revenue.
Chappell said his bill would raise at least $5,000,000 annually, with all but 10 per cent going to sales.

U. S. RECOMMENDS DRY ENFORCEMENT

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—(AP) Willford S. Alexander, federal alcohol administrator, said tonight he recommended in his annual report enforcement of the twenty-first amendment provisions restricting shipments of liquor into dry states.

Alexander said states prohibiting sale of liquor within their boundaries should be "protected" from liquor shipped in from other states.

He proposed a 1-2 of 1 per cent levy on the sale of automobiles, and 2 per cent on all other sales.

The Brewton bill would levy at the rate of 3 per cent on gross sales.

Both measures included levies on amusements, electric current, gas, telephone and telegraph messages and contractors.

Chappell said his bill would guarantee state support for common schools for nine months each year, instead of seven, as at present.

The Revenue Commission would administer and enforce both bills. Chappell said his proposal "would more than reimburse the counties for any loss of revenue sustained by virtue of the home-state exemption law."

His allocation provisions would specify that counties receive enough money to pay the expenses of courts as well as schools.

This would eliminate the necessity of counties levying valorem taxes for these purposes and should reduce the county ad valorem tax levy at least 90 per cent," Chappell said.

Tax Exemptions.
Exempted under the Chappell act would be:

Gasoline and tobacco on which a state tax already is paid, cotton, insurance companies, building and loan associations, state and national banks, mutual savings groups, farm produce, non-profit labor organizations, and school books, where the state fixes the price and hospital funds.

The Brewton bill would exempt retail sales when taxation is prohibited by the state constitution or by any federal law or the federal interstate commerce act, and the portion of retail sales of articles or services on which a state excise tax already is collected.

The Brewton bill exempts cotton sales whether in the seed, lint, or bale. There would be no tax under his bill on initial sales of cotton by producer, grower or producer of any milk, poultry, livestock, agricultural, horticultural or dairy product or commodity.

Attacks on "the mandate of the people" and defenses of the will of the voters featured the debate on the repeal bill which occupied the entire time of the house.

House Adjourns.

Two hours of battling over the big county whisky bill ended abruptly when the house adjourned Monday and thus deferred a vote. Some assemblymen predicted final action would not come before Tuesday.

The house carried over yesterday's argument on the Thomas proposal to legalize liquor in Georgia's six most populous counties—Bibb, Chatham, DeKalb, Fulton, Muscogee and Richmond.

Last June's referendum, in which Georgians defeated a proposal to repeal the state's 23-year-old ban on liquor, was cited by opponents as "the mandate of the people, the verdict of the jury which we must abide by."

Several arguments pegged on this idea. Representative Eugene E. Bibb, of Bibb, replied: "I'm going to pile into this idea that that we are precluded from voting for liquor because of the so-called mandate of the people."

Lead the People.
He agreed with Jones, of Brantley, that "the representative should sometimes lead the people as well as be led by them" and assailed the "sincerity of these professional prohibitionists."

At this point Horne said "I want my friend from Bleckley to listen to me" and the Bleckley legislator, L. A. Whipple, prominent prohibition advocate, asked him: "Do you think I am being paid for fighting this evil?"

Horne replied: "I do not charge the gentleman with being paid in money up here, but I have known him all my life and he has never ceased to capitalize on prohibition."

Defending the "will of the voter," Bibb replied: "The previous legislature decided to let the people act on Georgia's dry law."

Charges Inconsistency.
Assailing the administration for what he called inconsistency on this business of the mandate of the people," Candler asserted:

"I am sick and tired of this inconsistency. First the administration asks us to carry out the will of the people in making effective these constitutional amendments. And now they ask us to ignore the mandate of the people and vote for a liquor bill. I include the Governor in this because he has not raised his hand against the bill."

Taking another course of support McGraw, of Meriwether, urged legalization of whisky manufacture from Georgia products.

"Everybody knows cotton is no

When Little Black Hen Goes on Rampage

Eggs of assorted size and shape are produced by a hen in Burke county. Here is Mrs. Eleanor Robinson, of the State Agricultural Department, showing eight which range in size from that of a pigeon to one larger than normal. One is curved and one has two ovals and a neck. The hen is owned by Mrs. Mary D. Sapp, of Munneryn, Ga.

Freak Eggs Feared Biblical Sign-- 'Hens Need Lime,' Owner Is Told

When Little Black Fowl at Munneryn, Ga., Laid Eight Eggs, All of Different Size and Shape, Mrs. Mary D. Sapp Began To Wonder.

A little black hen, owned by Mrs. Mary D. Sapp, of Munneryn, Ga., has gone on an egg-laying rampage, Stiles A. Martin, statistician of the State Department of Agriculture, revealed yesterday.

In a few days the fowl produced eight eggs, all of different size and shape.

The hen started producing the queer-shaped eggs about Christmas, and it was January 4 before she laid a normal egg.

Became Alarmed.
Mrs. Sapp, whose home is in Burke county, became somewhat alarmed when she gathered abnormal eggs almost every day from the little black hen. She thought it strange when the hen laid small regular-shaped eggs, but she stood it even when she found a curved egg like a quarter-moon and another long slim one similar to her finger.

But when she found one with two oval ends and a connecting neck, she decided to make some inquiries.

Remembers Bible.
Remembering that the Bible said there will be signs from heaven before the end of time, she wrote the State Department to find someone wise enough to tell her if her little black hen's eggs could possibly be the signs of some important impending event.

Attaches of the Agriculture Department refused to pass on the Biblical question, but Martin said the eggs showed certain definite signs, all right.

"Your hens need more lime in their food," he wrote Mrs. Sapp.

Glass in Eye, Baby May Lose Sight

Little Robert Lynn Pateat, of 601 Pryor street, faces loss of sight in his right eye, doctors at Grady hospital said last night after treating the child for an eyeball puncture.

The four- and one-half-month-old child was playing in his crib yesterday when a piece of glass, with which he was playing, got in his eye and punctured the ball, the mother, Mrs. Robert H. Pateat, told attendants.

Doctors said there was little chance of saving the eye.

"Our fruit crop is declining in value every year and unless we make it possible to utilize some of our Georgia products in the manufacture of liquor and other distilled spirits our agricultural sections will continue to sink into poverty."

McGraw represents a county prominent in the peach belt and with Dunn, of Pike, has proposed a bill to manufacture liquor from Georgia products for export only. It has been favorably recommended. The Thomas bill would permit manufacture as well as retail sales of whisky.

In opposition, Harrison, of Crawford, told the house "You can raise plenty of revenue without debauching the people of our state. You had a chance to raise revenue by the soft drink tax but you wouldn't take that method."

Representing a county which voted dry in the referendum last year, Jones, of Elbert, said, "If I'm digging my political grave I'm big enough to fill it and big enough to take it, but I'm not going to vote against this bill and sustain the biggest racket in America."

Charges Politics.

He expressed the opinion that "the trouble with this liquor business is that too many men in this house are trying to get back up here 12 months from now."

Terming claims the liquor bill would yield $4,000,000 annually as "absurd," Harris, of Spalding, said: "I'd be surprised if it would raise $1,000,000." He declared prohibition could be enforced in Georgia "if we make up our mind to do it."

While the house debated, the senate cleared its calendar in an hour. It adjourned after approving a committee substitute for a house bill to authorize the State Highway Department to use funds for construction of farm to market roads and passing a measure to prohibit state employment of aliens except where no qualified American citizen is available.

Road Bill Favors.
The substitute, which must return to the house for concurrence, provides the highway board shall transfer funds available to the rural post roads division for matching federal funds for construction of these secondary roads.

As the house pushes toward a vote on liquor the senate will be in position to act on the house-approved tax reorganization plan.

Liquor debate was suspended briefly for receipt of a committee report recommending passage of the famous Burghin "home rule" bill already passed by the senate. This would eliminate handling of purely local legislation by the general assembly.

CIO GOES TO COURT IN JERSEY CITY ROW

Injunction To Prevent Interference by Officials Asked by U. S.

NEWARK, N. J., Jan. 7.—(AP)—The CIO and the American Civil Liberties Union took to federal court today their fight against Mayor Frank Hague, who said "Jersey City will stand firm against their 'red invasion.'"

Rebuffed in efforts to hold mass meetings in Jersey City or attempt public organization of industrial workers there, the complainants charged Jersey City officials with entering into "an unlawful plan and conspiracy" to forbid discussion of CIO work.

The suit, filed by Spaulding Frazer, dean of Newark Law school and CIO counsel, asked for an injunction restraining Jersey City officials from interfering with the plaintiffs' "free access upon and through the public streets, highways and thoroughfares of Jersey City" or with their holding of "peaceful meetings."

Filing of the suit came a day after Hague, addressing a city-wide rally, said the CIO "shall never come into this city as long as I am mayor" and Morris Ernst, Civil Liberties Union counsel, flung back this challenge:

"We are not going to stop until that town (Jersey City) is open to the traditions and the folklore of the American people."

CITY'S TAX DIGEST GAINS $21,006,556

Report Reveals Real Estate Bore Smallest Burden in Government Cost.

While Atlanta's 1937 tax digest increased $21,006,556 over 1936, real estate bore its lightest burden of the costs of government in the city's history, the annual report of tax-assessors and receivers indicated yesterday.

Real estate bore 64.84 per cent of the total tax levy in 1937, while in 1936 it bore 68.84 per cent, the report filed by Assessors J. C. Little, Leo Sudderth and J. Sid Tiller revealed.

At the same time, the number of taxpayers increased 1,726, showing a total of 75,902 accounts on the books in 1937 as compared with 74,176 accounts in 1936. Total tax valuations in 1937, real estate and personalty, amounted to $370,791,329, while in 1936 the total was $349,784,773.

The report showed collections by the municipal revenue collector amounting to 89.8 per cent of total tax levy for the year, as compared to 85.25 per cent in 1936.

Total current aggregate tax levy amounted to $6,477,919.87 in 1937. Amounts and sources were as follows:

Real estate, $4,200,682.41, 64.84 per cent; personalty, intangible, $749,004.07, 11.58 per cent; personalty tangible, $959,650.10; sanitary taxes, $486,694.21, 7.51 per cent, and street taxes, $81,204, 1.25 per cent.

55,000 WILL RETURN TO CHRYSLER PLANT

DETROIT, Jan. 7.—(AP)—Chrysler Corporation announced tonight that its automobile plants would reopen Tuesday returning to work the 55,000 employees who were shut when the holiday shutdown began December 23.

prompted, it was said, by an turn in the production rate week, following 15 consecutive weeks of decline to an average level slightly under 20 per cent of capacity.

With the rehiring of workers there has been some lengthening of the work hours of existing forces.

In the Pittsburgh district 6 furloughed steel workers were put back on the pay rolls week, a survey indicated. Of number about 4,000 went back to work in plants of United States Steel Corporation, it was estimated.

Bethlehem Steel, it was reported, recalled 2,000 or 3,000 of approximately 6,000 workers were laid off when the steel business slumped. There also has been some increase in the weekly rate of hourly work, according to company sources.

CHINESE ENVOY SAYS CHINA PEACE OUT OF QUESTION

Chinese Commander Protests Against Slugging of Soldiers by Nipponese.

By the Associated Press.
SHANGHAI, Jan. 3.—(Saturday)—While a Japanese army has been for a stranglehold on the city's lifeline railway the Japanese ambassador to China declared today that peace negotiations were "out of the question" at the present.

The envoy, Shigeru Kawagoe, said Japanese newspapermen that Japan should repudiate the national government as China's central administration.

"A new regime is needed," he said, "one absolutely relying on the technique and economic support and guidance of Japan."
The principal theater of the war was more than 400 miles west of Shanghai, on both sides of the east-west Lunghai way—known as China's "last line of defense"—but there was much international complications in Shanghai.

Protests Slugging.
The commander of British troops at Shanghai, Major General A. P. D. Telfer-Smollett, protested against the slugging of two British officers of the Shanghai municipal police by Japanese soldiers. He charged that Japanese troops had invaded the British defense zone of the International Settlement.

Telfer-Smollett was reported to have warned Japanese military authorities that repetition of the incident might bring "gravest consequences."
The British charged several Japanese soldiers rushed into the British zone to attack the officers when they remonstrated against that they considered unnecessary rough treatment of Chinese soldiers.

Advance Reported.
Japanese reported their advance southward through Shanghai province, aimed at control of the Tientsin-Pukow line, had captured Tsoowhsien.

That city, 90 miles north of the railroad junction at Suchow, was the birthplace of the philosopher, Confucius, contemporary of Plato and Aristotle. Chinese denied the capture and told of jolting counter thrusts at the northward advancing column.

The two Japanese columns are closing vise-like on Suchow along the Tientsin-Pukow railroad.

Question Box On the Bible

By W. L. PETTINGILL
ANOTHER GOSPEL.
Q. Please tell us what is meant by Paul's words to the Galatians (1:6, 7), "another gospel which is not another."

A. Paul is referring to the doctrine brought to the Galatians by false teachers, who taught a serious two-fold error. They held, first, that the way of salvation for the lost is partly by faith and partly by good works in obedience to the law of Sinai; and, second, that a saved man is kept saved by his own good works in obedience to that same law. Paul's reply is, first, that sinners were being saved by faith, and that it was law was issued, and that it was law, and always must be, by grace, through faith, plus nothing; and, second, that the saved man is kept saved by the indwelling in him of the Holy Spirit.

on record as indorsing the principle of establishing a floor for wages and ceiling for hours' and expresses confidence that the congress of the United States and the President of the United States, as is their prerogative, will work out the necessary legislation along these lines and provide satisfactory administrative machinery."

No Sweat Shops.
The governors prefaced their labor standards resolution with an advertisement in Washington newspapers of today which declared this policy in promoting industrial development of their states:

"The southeast wants no one to seek locations in her midst expecting cheap and low-paid labor or long hours of work. Sweat shop operators are and will be unwelcome."

The conference adopted a resolution offered by Governor Richard W. Leche, of Louisiana, indorsing proposals to organize a cotton council to co-ordinate the work of groups seeking solution of problems confronting the cotton farmer.

Re-elected Governor Bibb Graves, of Alabama, conference chairman, and Governor E. D. Rivers, of Georgia, was chosen vice chairman and treasurer. Robert's title was changed from industrial consultant to executive director, and O. Max Gardner, former governor of North Carolina, was elected advisory counsel.

Ryburn Clay Elected.
Ryburn G. Clay, of Atlanta, was elected custodian of general funds. The conference absorbed the inactive Southeastern Governors' Freight Rate Council. As members of a committee to determine a division of contributions among the nine southeastern states for pressing a plea for lower freight rates Graves named Governors Fred P. Cone, of Florida; Olin D. Johnston, of South Carolina, and Clyde R. Hoey, of North Carolina.

A prepared statement, issued following the afternoon session, said that "the discussion covered a wide range of subjects."

The conference was organized in 1937 to promote industrial development of the southeast, largely through a campaign for reduced railroad freight rates from southern to northern territory.

Discriminatory Rates.
A petition asking a downward revision of commodity rates, which the governors described as "discriminatory," is pending before the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Conference members attending today's sessions were Governors Graves, Rivers, Leche, Cone, Hoey, Johnston, and Gordon Browning, of Tennessee. Governors Hugh White, of Mississippi, and A. B. Chandler, of Kentucky, were absent.

Governor Leche said he "felt fine" over the indorsement by the conference of his proposed national cotton council.

He said the formation of a cotton council was the first step in a campaign for a fairer cotton market.

have been unable to obtain regular work. So I thought a couple of hours of deep worrying on the rock might help me figure out some way to get a job."

The letter was signed with the initials C. R. G.

Many letters were in lighter vein, like the one from A. R. B., who wrote:

"I really have a first-class worry. My mother-in-law thinks I'm the best bet her daughter could have possibly married. Now, this is not in keeping with traditions, and it worries me."

Then there was the letter from an eight-year-old boy, who signed himself O. T. K. Jr., and who sobbed on paper:

"I have a pet dog named Wags. He is a good dog and I love him. But he is all the time wanting to stay in the house, and not go out and play with me. I'm worried because maybe he is sick. Will you worry him well for me?"

Of course, there were many letters about such worries as Christmas bills, the boy friend's indifference, the girl friend's indifference, prospects of war, business conditions, and many other subjects.

But Ward is prepared. "Worrying capacity is tremendous, and I'm confident I can do all the worrying in a satisfactory manner," he said.

So send along your worry letters to The Constitution. They'll be given to Ward, and he'll do the rest—regardless of weather, for he plans to place a big umbrella at the rock, in case of inclement weather.

SOUTH'S GOVERNORS FETED AT CAPITAL

Dinner Attended by Cabinet Officers, Bureau Heads, Democratic Leaders.

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—After a White House luncheon conference with President Roosevelt, governors of the southeastern states were guests of honor tonight at a formal dinner attended by cabinet officers, government bureau heads and Democratic leaders from the two houses of congress.

The dinner, held at the Mayflower hotel, was given by Lawrence Wood Robert Jr., of Washington and Atlanta, industrial consultant to the Southeastern Governors' Conference and until recently assistant secretary of the treasury.

Farley Speaks.
Postmaster General James A. Farley made a brief address welcoming the visiting executives to Washington, after which there was a general informal discussion of mutual problems of the federal and state governments.

The guest list for the dinner was announced as follows:

Governor Bibb Graves, of Alabama; Governor E. D. Rivers, of Georgia; Governor Gordon Browning, of Tennessee; Governor Clyde R. Hoey, of North Carolina; Governor Olin D. Bankhead, of Alabama; House Majority Leader Sam Rayburn, of Texas; Senate Majority Leader Alben W. Barkley, of Kentucky; Chairman Pat Harrison, Mississippi, of the senate finance committee; Representative Robert L. Doughton, of North Carolina, chairman of the house ways and means committee; Postmaster General Farley, Chairman Frank McNinch, North Carolina, of the Federal Communications Commission; Chairman Jesse Jones, Texas, of the RFC.

Max Gardner, of North Carolina; Carroll Downes and Harvey Couch, business executives, of Arkansas.

Mutual Problems.
The dinner was arranged by Robert with a view of having the governors meet with congressional leaders and administration heads in an effort to gain a better understanding of mutual problems.

Governor Hugh White, of Mississippi, and Governor A. B. Chandler, of Kentucky, were prevented from attending by the White House conference and dinner tonight because of state legislative matters.

RIVERS TO BE GUEST OF GEORGIA SOCIETY
WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—Governor Rivers, of Georgia, attending the Southeastern Governors' conference here, will be the guest tomorrow of the Georgia State Society of Washington.

The Georgia congressional delegation, as well as other friends of the Governor in Washington, have been invited to attend by a committee composed of Harlee Branch, second assistant postmaster general, a former Atlantan; Horace Russell, general counsel of the Home Owners' Loan Corporation; Mrs. S. Gordon Green and Carter Barron, of Georgia Tech football fame, who is now general manager of the Loew motion picture theaters in the national capital.

Fight Fans Pay Silent Tribute To Edward Neil

NEW YORK, Jan. 7.—(P)—Lights were dimmed tonight in Madison Square Garden, while a fight crowd of 11,000 spectators stood silently and a spotlight shone on a laurel wreath decorating the ringside seat occupied for years by Edward Joseph Neil Jr., Associated Press war correspondent and sports writer who died at the "ringside" of the Spanish civil war.

Momentarily, between fights, the roar of the crowd subsided as Harry Balogh, official announcer, spoke a few words of tribute in behalf of Neil's sports-writing associates and the notes of a bugler, sounding "taps," echoed from the darkened recesses of the big arena.

The famous Garden "battle pit" long a background for Neil's colorful fight stories, was the setting for one of boxing's rarest tributes. It marked the first time since the death of T. A. (Tad) Dorgan, famous writer and cartoonist, nine years ago, that honor was paid to the memory of a former ringsider.

'Radio Finger' Built To 'Feel' Rise of Flood

HARRISBURG, Pa., Jan. 7.—(P)

A "model" flood forecasting system, with a "radio finger" on the "pulse" of the rivers to warn of danger, soon will be tested by flood-conscious Pennsylvania.

Dr. James Bogardus, secretary of forests and waters, said today it might be months before the setup is completed, but that experiments could be made before long.

"We have something here by which we hope to make impossible repetition of the disastrous floods of 1936," he added. "We call it a "model" because we worked it out with federal authorities to get a pattern which other states could follow."

One hundred stations have been established along the main waterways. These have been designed to register the amount of rainfall.

Specially made gauges are being installed. They will show the rainfall, from which trained observers will determine whether streams are going to rise out of control.

A radio system, linking all the rivers, will automatically tap out messages, constantly telling of conditions on the streams, the most minute fall or rise. This information will flow into a headquarters station and thus, warnings will be broadcast to the state at large.

NURSES WILL MEET.
NEWMAN, Jan. 7.—The Fourth District Nurses' Association will meet here at 3 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, Miss Mattie Lou Davis, of Newman, president, has announced. Chief item for discussion, Miss Davis stated, will be a standard salary scale for nurses on private duty.

Jacket Quintet Faces Tough Opener in Wolfpack Tonight

N. C. STATE BEATS GEORGIA CAGERS BY 24-21 MARGIN

Wolfpack's Captain Berry Proves Difference Between Two Teams.

ATHENS, Ga., Jan. 7.—Georgia tonight lost a close, hard-fought basketball game to North Carolina State with Captain Connie Mac Berry, the "Wolfpack's" All-American center, making the difference between the two teams. The final score was 24 to 21.

The "Wolfpack" played a more polished game with excellent timing passing, but it might have been a different story had it not been for Berry's deadly accuracy at talking points.

Little Cecil Kelly again stole the show for the Bulldogs and Tom Kennedy looked good with his long field goals. Jack Farren did an excellent job of guarding the All-American. Olin Thompson turned in a good performance, with the highest number of points to his credit.

Among the aggregation from Raleigh, Mann at forward and Jones at guard played heads-up ball.

The half ended with the score standing 13 to 9, North Carolina having the margin.

Mormon Basketeers Beat Fort Team, 51-24.

The Mormon basketeers of the Pacific coast trampled the eighth brigade of Fort McPherson, 51 to 24, last night.

This was the Mormons' last game before embarking on their annual southern tour which includes Columbus, Albany, Bainbridge, Tallahassee, Tampa, St. Petersburg, Miami, Orlando, Jacksonville, Savannah and various South Carolina towns. The team will return to Atlanta about the first of February.

Green Wave Cagers Beat Alabama, 24-19

TUSCALOOSA, Ala., Jan. 7.—(AP)—Tulane's basketball team defeated an unpulsed Alabama team here tonight, 24-19.

The Crimson's, unable to practice as a unit with Coach Hank Crisp and several varsity players away on the Rose Bowl trip, missed Perron Shoemaker, veteran guard, who was out with a foot injury.

Tulane led, 16-6, at half time and eased up in the second period.

(Editor's Note: Break o' Day is written today by Jack Troy, acting sports editor of The Constitution, pinch-hitting for Ralph McGill.)

It is to be hoped that these "sources close to the university" keep up the good work for at least a couple of more days. For they are providing a lot of stories which are interesting, if not true.

And if only more public-spirited coaches around the country will kick in with statements such as "I like my work fine and am looking forward to a great eleven; and if an offer came from the University of Georgia I don't know what I'd do"—well, if only more of these statements come in over the wires, everything will be perfect, until Monday afternoon.

It seems they're going to name a new coaching set-up over at Athens Monday afternoon. Provided, that is, helpful persons "close to the university" don't already go ahead and announce the new coaching combination for the subcommittee of five and the governing board of 19 able gentlemen.

There is no question but that the subcommittee has whittled the bulky list of applicants down to its size. It was evident Thursday afternoon that all save four prospects had been eliminated. Now it would seem that only three remain.

And the big question seems to be whether the head coach is to be Dell Morgan or Joel Hunt. The same "sources close to the university" have had, first Morgan, then Hunt, as head coach, and first had Elmer Lampe as athletic director.

Somebody is wrong. But I think you safely can lay odds of 1,000 to 5 that it isn't the subcommittee. I rather imagine they know the answers. And on Tuesday morning you will be able to read in your favorite newspaper the final decision reached by those responsible for the future of athletics at the University of Georgia.

They have gone over the field with a fine tooth comb, so to speak, and the final decision they make should certainly be acceptable to all concerned. It is naturally a matter of grave concern to all Georgia men and they have left it in the hands of five men who know what they are doing. They can't afford to make any mistakes.

IF IT'S DELL MORGAN.

Now, should it develop that Dell Morgan is the committee's choice, a lot of folks, I think, will be pleased. Morgan's record and reputation in the coaching profession are above reproach. He is a mature and able gentleman who is highly esteemed by Jack Meagher and his other associates at Auburn.

Jack Meagher would hate to lose him. For Morgan, in addition to his personal attributes, is a fine line coach. He is, beyond that, a great leader of boys. None can deny that. His record is easy on the eyes.

Morgan was such a fine player for Austin College against the club coached by Jack Meagher that the latter followed his career with great interest and when he went to Auburn promptly signed him on as line coach and coach of the baseball team. Morgan had a fling at pro baseball before he went into coaching.

The Plainsmen don't want to stand in the way of Morgan rising higher in the profession, but secretly they will be pleased if he returns as line coach.

OR IF IT'S JOEL HUNT.

If it develops, on the other hand, that Joel Hunt is the final choice as head coach, Georgia's gain will be L. S. U.'s loss. Hunt, former Texas A. & M. football star—he finished in the spring of 1928—is regarded as one of the greatest backs ever developed in the southwest.

As backfield coach at Old Lou, he is considered a most valuable member of the staff. They think very highly of Hunt at L. S. U., do Bernie Moore, Red Heard and other school athletic officials.

The only reason L. S. U. will permit Hunt to get away is because school officials, much as they like him, would not stand in the way of him bettering himself.

If he isn't named head coach at Georgia he will, of course, return to Old Lou as backfield coach. He will not leave, anyway, unless he is named head coach.

BASKIN AND HOLLIS SEEM SAFE.

Weems Baskin and Howell Hollis apparently have been certain under the new regime all along, Baskin as track coach and Hollis as freshman coach. So that leaves them out of all the speculation.

This part of the new scheme of things was announced from Miami following Georgia's final game. Baskin, one of the best trackmen ever developed at Auburn, is a fine track coach. He had a most important hand in the development of Spec Towns. Hollis is an able freshman coach and a valued scout.

It sounds logical enough, too, that Elmer Lampe should be signed as end coach and coach of the basketball team. He has had quite a record at a relatively small school since he left the

RUMORS FLYING THICK AND FAST AROUND ATHENS

Morgan Out, Hunt in, Latest Report; Lampe Is Fixture.

By JACK TROY.

Out of a welter of conflicting reports, one thing appeared certain yesterday regarding the coaching situation at the University of Georgia. And that was the subcommittee of five and the governing board of 19 men will meet in Athens at 5 o'clock Monday afternoon to choose a new athletic setup.

It also was deemed certain, according to eye-witnesses and operatives that:

(1) Dell Morgan returned to Auburn after numerous interviews with the subcommittee.

(2) Joel Hunt also returned to L. S. U. after numerous interviews, etc.

(3) Elmer Lampe visited the campus to look over Georgia's plant and, so far as known, will be around for a spell.

THOSE SOURCES.

There were various reports as to what the committee finally had decided to do. There were more "sources close to the university" than you could shake a stick at.

Reports had Morgan out and Hunt as head coach. Lampe was held certain to be named basketball coach and given a place in the physical education department.

Other reports held that the situation still remained in status quo. Which is just as good a guess as any.

It does seem certain, however, that selection of a head coach is narrowed down to two men—Hunt and Morgan. And which of these two will get the job, only the subcommittee of five men knows.

MYSTERY DEEPENS.

If these men aren't talking—and they certainly aren't—and if the prospects are remaining close-mouthed—which they certainly are—then it becomes a bit puzzling where all the "sources" are getting their reliable information.

The whole thing will be settled for once, if not for all, Monday afternoon when the selection committee and the board convene at Athens. You can read all about it in Tuesday morning's Constitution.

The information given out at that time will be official and, happily, all speculation then will be ended. Whatsoever more Georgia makes, one is certain that it will be for the better. I mean by that the committee of five and the governing board will make a wise choice.

HALL SETS MARK FOR HIS LEAGUE

Charles E. Hall set three new records in the First National Bank league for this season's bowling Friday evening as the first half drew to a close.

In the final of the three games bowled, he smacked the pins for big counts on spares and strikes to roll up a new high single game of the league, 155. His previous games of 133 and 117 gave him a three-game total of 405 for a new high series in the league.

The big set increased his average over the 100 mark for the top individual average mark of the season, thus far, for the third record of the evening.

In addition, his splendid bowling aided his North Avenue team to finish in tie for the first half of play, as they won three games for 314, Passmore 302 and Kirk 342 and some of the other leading scores.

Jack Copeland bowled 332 for 318, "Mac" Moore had 312, I. W. Sargent 314, Passmore 302 and Kirk 342 and some of the other leading scores.

CITIZENS' LEAGUE.

The Central Night School and the Tri-County quintet engaged in what proved to be the best game played thus far in the Citizens' league this season, Central winning, 32-31. The Triangle five set up an impenetrable defense against Central, sinking shot after shot from almost impossible angles and the home team was unable to get a shot off.

'I Tell You Boys, That Wolfpack Is Tough'

Apostoli K.O's Fred Steele In 9th

(Copyright, 1938, by The Constitution and North American Newspaper Alliance, Inc.)

MADISON SQUARE GARDEN, NEW YORK, N. Y., Jan. 7.—The middleweight division was turned inside down tonight when Fred Apostoli, the flaming San Franciscan, knocked out Freddie Steele, champion of the world, in 54 seconds of the ninth round of their 12-round grudge fight.

Steele's title was not at stake, but his reputation was, and Apostoli made short work of him. He had a score to settle with Steele. He settled it by hammering the game but nearly unconscious Tacoman from pillar to post for the last two rounds of the battle, following a belt-line punch in the seventh round which Steele claimed a foul.

Fair or foul, that punch cooked Steele's goose. It seemed to land square upon the top of Frederick's black trunks. The champion clutched at his groin, and Referee Arthur Donovan gave him a recess of 20 seconds. From that point on, Steele was hopelessly licked. He stood up gamely, but his right eye was cut and his brain was floating somewhere between here and the river Jordan.

For Apostoli, it was a glorious triumph. He stood the world of middleweights right on its head. He avenged the only real licking of his brief career, a 10-round knockout at the hands of Steele in 1935. He made himself the planet's outstanding middleweight. Steele is still the champion, but he will have to lay his title on the line at Apostoli's bidding.

And to do Steele justice, he probably wants to do just that. The grudge between the lean son of Washington and the sturdy Italian from Telegraph Hill is not over by any means.

Tonight Apostoli fought like an arm of destiny. Whenever he rallied and poured his right-hand fire at Steele's chin, he backed the canny champion against the ropes. His rushing tactics won him the second, third, fifth, sixth and eighth rounds, to say nothing of the final heat. The seventh round also brought plenty of punishment to Steele, but Referee Donovan, because of Apostoli's fairly low punch, took the round away from the challenger.

It was perhaps the best middleweight fight since the time of Mickey Walker. Steele was cute and fast. If it hadn't been for Apostoli's burning thirst for vengeance, his genuine jungle savvy, Steele might have won. But when a guy goes berserk, there isn't much you can do about it.

Moving into the fifth round, the fight was even—Steele did all the boxing, and Apostoli did all the fighting. The fifth and sixth were Apostoli's, and the seventh, low blow and all, was Apostoli's too, everywhere but on the official score card.

Coming out for the eighth, the raging young man from San Francisco realized that he had the champion dreaming on his feet. Steele stood up, a model of gameness, but he didn't throw a punch.

N. C. STATE FIGHT HAS TOP SCORER OF CONFERENCE

Mundorff Afraid Isn't Ready for Test Naval Armory.

By JOHNNY BRADBERRY. Star-studded at every point the varsity but noticeably in reserves, Georgia Tech's 1938 team of basketball players will open campaign tonight against North Carolina State at the Naval armory at 8 o'clock.

Coach Roy Mundorff is any too optimistic concerning team's chances against the scrappy State five. He boasts of the sensational Connie Mac Berry, who scored points last year in 20 games.

Mac Berry is a great defensive player as well as a star offense, standing 6 feet three one-half inches tall.

Tech will match his play, ever, with one of the best centers in the south, Bo Johnston, Southeastern conference player last season. Johnston, hails from Savannah, is considered the best "spot" man in south, being able to shoot either hand and pivot in any position.

GRIDMEN IN LINEUP.

Other men on the Tech vs. are well known for their ball fame. Fletcher Sims, Jordan, Junior Anderson and Jones, gridders all, will complete the lineup—along with Johnston.

The team looked good in today's final scrimmage against the freshmen, running up a 1 score and limiting the yearlings to practically nothing.

Ed Jones, Sims and Johnston looked especially good. Johnston with his uncanny passing ability will be able to play tomorrow night, his side injury having covered enough for him to participate in the scrimmage.

The team was given new ties and sweat clothes before practice and took the workout then.

Coach Mundorff admitted that he had better than at previous times this week but that they were not in the best shape, and hardly ready for a stiff opener.

SEES FIGHT.

"They'll be in there scrapping, however, and I look for a game—no matter who wins," said.

In announcing Junior Anderson will start at one of the guard positions opposite Sims, Mundorff said there was really little choice between him and George Smith, another football player.

"One is just about as good as the other and both will see plenty of service," he commented.

If substitutions are necessary and Mundorff hopes they will be, Joe Ebdon and Walter Hayman are the most likely players.

Bond and Kemp will play officials for the game tonight.

TECH HIGH, G. M. A. WIN 'BIG 8' GAME

Tech High and G. M. A. were victorious in opening-round Big basketball games played here last night. The Smiths ran away with Commercial High's Typists, 36 to 4, and the Cadets from G. M. A. defeated Columbus High, 25 to 10.

Tech High and G. M. A. will clash next Tuesday at College Park in the second round.

The Typists failed to collect single field goal as a fighting team of Smiths played a nifty defensive game. Four foul shots registered by four different Typists was the combined net result of the Commercial point column.

Ammons, with 11 points, was high scorer for Tech High. Platter, who played a great floor game at guard, garnered eight points in 20 minutes.

In the G. M. A.-Columbus game, Whelchel, Cadet forward, was high scorer with 10 points. Homer, Columbus center, was next with eight points. The game was close all the way, the score being tied at the half, 10-10.

N. Y. Racing Season May Last 170 Days

NEW YORK, Jan. 7.—(AP)—Dates for 170 days of horse racing in New York state have been drawn up by the five associations and will be presented to the Jockey Club and State Racing Commission for approval.

The schedule, one less than in 1937, calls for the season to open at Jamaica April 15 and close at Empire City on October 29. There is the probability, however, that the Jockey Club may see fit to extend the season 12 days as the state law permits racing from April 15 to November 15.

The schedule as proposed by the associations follows: Jamaica—April 15-May 8 and October 3-15. Belmont Park—May 9-June 4 and September 4-October 1. Aqueduct—June 5-29 and August 29-September 14. Empire City—June 30-July 28 and October 16-29. Saratoga—July 28-August 27.

Remember That Night

By Margaret Gorman Nichols

INSTALLMENT XXVI

"My mother and I came to New York. I heard from Lela and Craig by mail. They were having a hard time with Craig in school, earning no money. Then she wrote and said they had a baby. You. Karen, Craig is your father!"

Karen felt tears in her eyes. Craig was her father! She had always thought of her mother!

"Let me finish, please," Brenda said breathlessly. "You'll have to try to picture your mother, high-spirited and ambitious in her own right, to understand what she did. 'She and Craig were very poor and something had to be done. So she got a job in a traveling company and took you along! Craig opposed it bitterly. But she went anyway. I'm sure she thought she was doing the right thing to help. There was no one she could leave you with. The city where Craig was going to school was in the east. They didn't know anybody except other students. His people had nothing to give them and her aunt and uncle had opposed their marriage."

"That night the company went broke in Harrison, Lela was almost penniless. And that night she wrote me a letter, telling me she was going to leave you in the hotel and that I should come for you. She couldn't take you with her. It was winter. She had decided to go back home, back west, to try to get some money. It was the wrong thing to do, of course, but you must try to understand that she was too proud to go back to Craig a failure after she had defied him to go."

"She wasn't thinking, clearly that night. She was young and nearly penniless and alone in a strange town with a baby. She didn't realize what she was doing. And she was so certain I would come for you at once."

"But Lela was killed the next night far from Harrison in one of the worst train wrecks in years."

"I was in California when I read of her death in the papers," Brenda went on. "But, you see, Karen, the police in Harrison naturally did not know that Mrs. Craig Stanhope, who was killed in a train wreck, was the Mary Redfern, the actress, they were looking for. Mary Redfern was her stage name."

"And I was in California and I didn't know she had sent for me to come to you!"

"They identified her by a card in her bag. That was all. There—there was almost night left except wreckage. So Craig thought you had died, too."

"I wired Craig but I didn't hear from him. Several weeks later when I returned to New York, there was Lela's letter. I tried to get Craig at the university, but he'd gone. I tried his home and no one knew where he was. I did not know until years later that a famous doctor, knowing about Lela's death and supposedly yours, and knowing that if Craig did not have encouragement then, we would never attain the things of which he gave a high promise, had sent him abroad to study."

"Now Karen, this is where I come in. I was the only person in the world who knew you were alive. And I—I didn't go for you! I didn't know where Craig was. And I—I was selfish. I'd just been offered an important part and I didn't know what to do with a baby. My mother had died in the meantime. I was badly upset about that. There wasn't any money left and I was living in small quarters with another girl."

"But I have no excuse. I should have gone for you! But I tried to comfort myself by hoping and praying that nice people would take you and that you'd have a happy life."

"And so all the years before and after Craig came back home I knew he had a daughter growing up in Harrison. But I was selfishly afraid to tell him! That's why I wouldn't marry him."

"And all these weeks I've known you, Karen, I have tried to make you like me enough to forgive me when I had to tell you this."

"Today I went to the hospital and told Craig. I asked him to forgive me, too."

Her voice was quite low now. "He didn't bring us to the theater tonight because he..."

"Because he wouldn't forgive you?" Karen asked.

Brenda shook her head and smiled. "No. Not that. He did forgive me. He didn't come because he said I had to tell you before he saw you. He knows I'm telling you now. He said he'd tell you. But I wouldn't let him."

"Karen, do you—do you want to see your father?"

Her father! Craig! He had ached with crowded thoughts and pictures. But it was clear, all very clear now, as it was really quite a simple story.

"Yes, I'd like to see him now, Brenda."

"You understand everything? It was such a long time ago. It..."

And Karen knew she was asking to be forgiven.

Looking up, she smiled. "I told you I could never hate you because you've been so good to me, Brenda. I—I think you've more than paid for that one wrong."

The other's eyes filled. "Thank you for saying that, my dear."

She opened the door and Karen saw Craig's distinguished gray hair.

"I'm going to leave you with—your father, Karen."

Craig came into the dressing room filled with flowers and he and Karen looked at each other. My father, she thought. This tall, distinguished man, this famous surgeon. All through her childhood she had dreamed of meeting her mother.

She thought of Philip—Philip again. Brenda had said that she owed her success to him and now it was also because of his interest that she would no longer wonder who she was and would no longer have a queer feeling when any one mentioned a birthday. And no longer would she feel different from other people. Philip—again!

Craig came forward and without saying anything took her in his arms and held her close a long time. Karen felt this strong, steady man tremble and knew she was trembling, too. She did not want to cry. But tears she could not help spilled over her lashes.

Releasing her a little but still holding her, he looked into her face.

"Karen," he said. To relieve his feelings, he smiled.

"I should have known. You know, you and look a good bit alike. We didn't call you Karen but it's really a nice name that the one we gave you."

He knew he must be gentle with her. He knew he could not show his feelings. My child! My daughter! But for Philip he would never have been born.

"I know," he said kindly. "It is hard to believe. It's a great shock. So much has happened to it after a bit—used ing father and daughter."

He smiled again.

"We liked each other from the beginning, didn't we? I hear all about you, Karen a lot of time to make up. years. But right now we should think of Brenda love her both of us. And we've forgiven her, she has given herself."

"She looked terrible," said. "Yes, let's find her. But Brenda had left the apartment."

Sitting beside him in the unable to take her eyes from Karen asked. "Do you think marry you know?"

"I asked her today. She answer. I don't know he went through the performance. But I do, really, a real trouper."

His hand covered hers and laughed quietly. "Why, come to me nearly famous! a handicapped for any father-mous daughter!"

But his expression was again. "I couldn't have for any one lovelier than Karen. Your foster-parents fine job. I want to know all you. We'll go away together time and you can tell me thing. Are you happy about Karen?"

Still she kept her eyes on Happy? She scarcely knew she said.

But she said, "I couldn't asked for or hoped for any better or finer than you. I won't feel different from people. Sometimes I'd forget remember with a shock. And I—I never had a real birthday. "June 17 is your birthday."

Parking the car a block through his and suddenly felt from Brenda's apartment, walked. She slipped her safe and happy. The feel safety was new. Even as she had felt she was drifting. "Shall we tell people this?" he asked. "I can't well say I've kept you in all these years. Of course tell people! I want to boast we'll have to give a slightly brag and show you off. We'll have to give a slightly ferent version of the story public. We won't mention da."

When he looked down at she looked up. "Yes... Fat. He had a queer strained as if she had hurt him. "What," he said, "feels strange for you to say, I know, stranger still for me to hear say it."

Brenda, tall and slender blonde in a long black dress, ed away from the window.

With one arm tightly around Karen, Craig said, "One's filled with my daughter, Brenda. I'd like you to fill the other. ren and I aren't sad. We've regrets. What has passed has ed. We're happy that we d miss each other completely. we're going to make up for the time we've lost. We're go to have fun. This is a happy casion and I think we should go out and have some champagne to celebrate. To celebrate sev things. And one of them is you and I are going to get married. Brenda, come here."

Slowly, her eyes shining, came across the room and f his other arm.

But they did not go out. T sat in Brenda's lovely living room and talked for hours. They their wedding for Monday since they could not go away cause of the play, they wo have no honeymoon until the summer.

"You see what being an act means," Brenda said, "I can't e have a honeymoon! I can't move into apartment and Karen would s with them."

But Karen's mind wandered Philip. It was past midnight. was Tuesday. Tomorrow—oh tomorrow! Tomorrow is the end my life. The end of my love. isn't right to love another wo an's husband and dream of h and wish he would kiss you! A he had been more wonderful night than ever as he stood in h room filled with flowers. "I do know, she thought, "why he w more wonderful tonight."

JUST NUTS

Solution to Yesterday's Puzzle.

UNCLE RAY'S Corner

A LITTLE SATURDAY TALK.

We have already spoken of dogs being tamed by the people of ancient Egypt. There were also many other kinds of tame animals in the country.

First in importance, we may place cattle. Herds of these were kept by many of the farmers. They were used as beasts of burden, and drew plows across fields which were to be planted with grain. The flesh of bulls was used for meat, but there was a custom against the killing of cows for that purpose. Milk from cows was a common food drink. Cattle were sometimes used as threshing machines. They were driven round and round upon floors covered with new-cut wheat and the grain was tramped out.

The taming of cattle in Egypt appears to have been done by capturing wild animals which grazed about the outer edges of the settled part of the country. With the help of lasso and nets set up on poles, cattle were brought under the power of man.

The owners of herds often caused their cattle to be branded with a special mark. This was to make it possible to tell the beast apart, and also to prevent hunters from slaying tame cattle.

In time of the Nile floods, herds of cattle were sometimes caught in the rising waters. Then their keepers made a desperate fight to save them by rowing or paddling behind and trying to force them swim to dry land.

Donkeys were also common animals. They carried loads of grain and other produce to market; and peasants sometimes rode on the backs.

Horses were not used in Egypt for more than two thousand years after the invention of writing. They were at length brought into the country from Asia.

Their chief use was for drawing chariots, both in war and peace. Sheep, goats and pigs were among the other animals kept by Egyptian farmers. Monkeys and the little deer-like animals known as gazelles were kept as pets.

Something Wrong? It Was Broken Hip

Mrs. Bertha Blackwell, 84-year-old College Park woman, thought something must be wrong with her right hip—the pains had been "terrific" since Tuesday.

Yesterday the pain was more than she could stand. She was taken to Grady hospital.

Internes admitted her with a broken hip.

"Looking at the situation as a whole," he said, "I would say that employment in autos and auto parts has been reduced 50 per cent."

For those whom General Motors has retained, the work week is 24 hours, he continued, Chrysler employees are working 12 to 24 hours weekly, and Ford workers on to three days weekly.

Relief facilities are overtaxed, Martin testified. He said there were "lines two blocks long" at the city relief offices, "thousands applying" for WPA jobs, and state relief facilities "taxed to the limit."

His testimony was given while President Roosevelt, who conferred yesterday with Knudsen, told reporters he expected to have further meetings with industrial leaders for the purpose of remedying what he called the evils of high-pressure salesmanship and other business practices that lead to overproduction and glutted markets.

The committee announced that 15 witnesses, including Secretary of Agriculture Wallace and Lamont du Pont, chairman of the E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co., had been called to testify next week. Du Pont is scheduled to be the first witness Monday morning.

Others on the list included: Monday—Claudius T. Murchison, president Textile Institute; Robert E. Henry, president Southern Textile Manufacturers' Association; Russell Fisher, president American Cotton Manufacturers' Association.

The federation opposed the administration's wage-hour bill in a special session of congress, tending some of its provisions could be changed.

Green said he was dubious as to the practicality of President Roosevelt's proposal that labor in building trades should accept a 10-hour wage rate in return for a guaranteed increase in annual income. The President has proposed this as a means of reducing building costs.

Committee members said the fact that Martin and Green appeared on the same day was pure coincidence. Martin had asked to "hear in reply to yesterday's testimony by William S. Knudsen, president of General Motors, they said.

William Haber, a former member of the Michigan relief commission, now professor of economics at the University of Michigan, testified that 62,000 persons were on relief in the state and that the number was increasing 5,000 weekly.

Whereas formerly there was a one-week lag between the time of losing a job and applying for relief, he said that had been reduced to three days, because the applicants had learned that some one was required to obtain a place on the relief rolls.

"Immediate action is needed," Martin testified, "for the relief of hundreds of thousands of workers facing immediate hardship and the hundreds of thousands facing such low wages that it is impossible for them to obtain a proper living."

Martin said General Motors had cut employment from a 1937 peak of 220,000 to 161,000, and Chrysler from 180,000 to 150,000. He said his statement was based on figures supplied by the motor companies to the United Automobile Workers of which he is president.

He said best estimates for the Ford plant, with which the union had no relations, were that 50,000 of a normal 90,000 force were out of work. No one, "not even Ford himself," had authoritative figures on that point, Martin added.

35 FIGHTING SHIPS HUNT LOST FLIERS

Hope Wanes for Seven in U. S. Air Cruiser Missing in Pacific Ocean.

SAN PEDRO, Cal., Jan. 7.—(AP)—Thirty-five fighting ships scanned the sea today while 284 planes hunted from the air in an area of 60,000 square miles off the coast here for eight naval fliers lost at sea.

There was no hope for the eighth flier, Cadet Scott P. Hawkins, 29, of Jefferson City, Mo. He fell to death yesterday 100 miles off shore from a catapulted plane attached to the cruiser Cincinnati, searching for the other seven missing navy aviators.

Hope waned for the seven men unreported since Wednesday evening on one of the navy's newest cruisers of the air, a 25-ton patrol bomber.

Seven Unreported.

They were Lieutenant Truman E. Carpenter, 28, pilot, of Pascumpsc, Vt.; Aviation Cadet Philip O. Bowning, 28, co-pilot, Lees Summit, Mo.; Edgar Anglin, aviation chief machinist mate, 37, Norfolk, Va.; G. A. Mills, 22, radioman, third class, Prescott, Mich.; C. C. Creech, 22, aviation machinist mate, third class, Richmond, N. Y.; L. Peace, machinist mate, National City, Cal., and J. J. Adair, 21, radioman, third class, Caruthersville, Mo.

Staff officers of the commander of aircraft squadrons, scouting force, to which the missing plane was attached, said the big sky cruiser could remain aloft for several days.

Weather Good.

The commander-in-chief of the United States fleet radioed the Associated Press from his flagship, the Pennsylvania, that weather was good for the search area today. He said the hunt 250 miles to sea from the coast extended north and south for a space of 300 miles, from San Luis Obispo, Cal., to Ensenada, Lower California.

There were two aircraft carriers, the Saratoga and Lexington, each with 72 planes; 11 battleships, each with three planes; a number of cruisers, each with four planes; 60 giant patrol planes and 18 destroyers employed in the search.

BAILIFF MORRIS' WIFE
FUNERAL RITES HELD

Final rites for Mrs. Ola Morris, 56, wife of James C. Morris, bailiff of Fulton superior court, were held at 3:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon at Mount Vernon Methodist church.

The Rev. P. L. Maner and the Rev. A. S. Hutchinson officiating, and burial was in Crown Hill cemetery, under the direction of J. Austin Dillon Company.

Mrs. Morris, who lived at 1020 Tilden avenue, N. W., died Thursday morning of pneumonia. She was secretary and past matron of Inman chapter, Order of Eastern Star.

"Oh, Daddy!" the young Mrs. Hughes cried exultantly as she talked with the elder Bennett in Detroit from the private office of Chief Justice Charles E. Hughes, Woodruff had been asked by Bennett to get the couple to a telephone.

Then, slightly befuddled and bewildered, they indicated they wanted to be alone. Young Hughes was the spokesman.

"There isn't much of a story," he said. "We just got married and we drove straight to Tampa, and here we are."

"Of course you're happy?" they were asked.

"Oh, very, very happy," the girl said, and they were on their way to their three-roomed flat, where they had paid $3.50 for a week's rent in advance—until Russell could find a job.

When Miss Bennett disappeared from her home at Detroit Monday fears were aroused that she had been kidnapped. But it was discovered then she and Hughes had been married in Indiana.

At Bennett's direction, George M. Holtzman, a Tampa representative of the Ford Motor Company, took the couple in charge as official host.

CONFIDENTIAL DATA AIDS TVA, CHARGE

Utilities Claim Witnesses Testify From Commission Reports.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Jan. 7.—(AP)—The 18 private utilities attacking the Tennessee Valley Authority sought to bring out today that a TVA witness used confidential reports to the Federal Power Commission in testifying against them.

The witness, Percy H. Thomas, of Atlanta, regional director of the Federal Power Commission, told the three-member federal court under cross-examination that although he was not testifying as a member of the commission staff, his testimony was based on data gathered by the commission.

Power Company Reports Used.

Thomas testified yesterday that Southeastern States Utilities faced a power shortage beginning in 1939. He said on cross-examination he used "power company reports to the commission" in making his studies.

Raymond T. Jackson, acting chief counsel for the utilities, asked: "Are these reports not confidential?"

"They are not confidential to proper persons," Thomas answered.

Photostats Given TVA.

"And you gave photostats of the reports to the TVA?" inquired Jackson.

"Yes," replied Thomas. "But you know," Jackson said, "that these reports are not available to private engineers or power companies?"

"I don't know," Thomas said. "If I want to give them to some one I ask permission of the commission."

The court adjourned until Monday.

GIVEN BUZZARD ROOST

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—(AP)—The $2,830,000 Buzzard Roost power project in South Carolina received the "go ahead" signal today.

The supreme court, at the request of Solicitor General Reed, agreed to notify immediately the South Carolina federal district court that the authority of the Public Works Administration to put up the funds had withstood challenge.

The next move toward development of the project would be for Greenwood county to requisition for PWA funds, allotted to it more than two years ago when the Buzzard Roost project was approved.

PWA ASKS COURT
TO LIFT LOAN BAN

Cites Supreme Bench Decision Upholding Program.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—(AP)—The Public Works Administration today asked the district court to dissolve temporary injunctions granted in five suits by private power companies to halt government financing of public power projects.

The motions cited the supreme court's recent decisions in the Duke Power Company and Alabama Power Company cases upholding the constitutionality of the government's program for financing municipal electrical developments.

The cases in which the court is now asked to dissolve injunctions are suits by the Iowa-Nebraska Light & Power Company, involving the huge Sutherland, Columbus and Keystone reservoir projects in Nebraska; the Kansas Power Company, in reference to Holston, Kan.; the Arkansas Utilities Company, involving Paragould, Ark.; the Birmingham Electric City, Ala., and the Memphis Light & Power Company, involving Memphis, Tenn.

Air Liner Wrecked, Injured Pilot Braves Swamp To Guide Rescuers

NEWARK, N. J., Jan. 7.—(AP)—Stranded for four hours in the middle of a swamp, five passengers of a transport airliner cheered and whistled today as their pilot guided rescuers to their party-sunken ship.

While flares glowed eerily against the pre-dawn night, Pilot Usher Rousch, of Chicago, cut over the eye when his head struck the instrument panel as he under-storm-swept Newark airport, struggled more than two miles through mud and water to pick up a rescue party.

The rescuers found passengers of the plane unhurt and their spirits buoyed by Copilot Stanley Gerding, of Chicago, and a pretty blonde stewardess, Veronica Lalley, a graduate nurse of Mercy hospital, Janesville, Wis.

"All the raves go to Veronica Lalley," commented Jack Ryan, of Evanston, Ill., a passenger. "She's aces. She kidded us all into thinking we were coming into the airport, got our coats ready and everything."

"She got us out in nothing flat," said A. R. Watkins, of Chicago, making his first flight.

Rousch, flying in from Chicago in the 21-passenger, eight-ton plane, rode the Newark radio beam, but the heavy rain hampered his visibility. As the ship circled overhead for a half hour after its scheduled 1:30 a. m. (Atlanta time) landing time, the stewardess strapped the passengers to their seats.

At 2:10, Rousch, who has 9,000 years' service, came in for a landing. The plane struck the marshland, bounced, and struck again. The plane finally came to rest on badly damaged landing gear and fuselage.

"I was praying hard when we hit," said Watkins, "but after the third bounce, I knew everything would be all right."

The radio was not damaged, so Rousch messaged:

"We are in marsh between range station and field. No injuries."

Passengers were routed from the plane until danger of explosion or fire was past.

PILOT ONCE MADE
HOME IN HAVELVILLE

Pilot Usher Rousch resided in Havelville and flew the Atlanta-Chicago mail route for the American Air Lines until President Roosevelt cancelled air mail contracts in 1933 and ordered army pilots to fly the mail.

Coming in from Chicago on the last night run the private company made, Rousch immediately began instructing a young army lieutenant who was to fly the return trip. The veteran pilot gave him every pointer he could, friends said, and refused to go to bed until word was received from Tennessee that the lieutenant had safely crossed the mountain range.

Rousch, one of the original movie stunt fliers, was one of the most popular fliers ever stationed at Candler field, Havelville residents reported.

HOME IN NAMITED; 3 CHILDREN KILLED

Mother Seriously Injured;
Three Men Are Held on Murder Charge.

ELIZABETHTON, Tenn., Jan. 7.—(AP)—Sheriff Moreland said tonight murder charges had been placed against three men held in connection with a dynamite explosion which killed three children and seriously injured their mother at their home near here early today.

The sheriff listed the men as White and Crave Tollett, brothers, and Lee Walker, all of Pikeville, Tenn. The three men were arrested in Pikeville and were being transferred to Carter county jail.

Five men and a woman were being held for investigation, the sheriff said, adding he believed the blast may have been the outgrowth of the slaying of Arnold Tollett in 1936, in connection with which Harmon Gouge, 35-year-old husband and father of the victims, is scheduled to face trial next month.

White and Crave Tollett, Moreland declared, are brothers of Arnold Tollett. He said Gouge was under $10,000 bond as the admitted slayer of Arnold Tollett. Moreland added Gouge claimed self defense.

Apparently Asleep.

Mrs. Harmon Gouge, 34, and her three daughters, Sonia, 9; Luena, 7; and Roma Jean, 5, apparently were asleep when an explosion from the cellar beneath their bedroom shattered parts of the house and caved in the foundation.

SOUTHERNERS SEE AID TO BUSINESS IN RAIL RATE RISE

Interstate Commerce Commission Ends Hearing on Proposed Increase.

General business prosperity will result from a 15 per cent increase in railroad freight rates, more than 50 southeastern manufacturers, shippers and business executives testified yesterday at the Interstate Commerce Commission concluded a two-day hearing on the proposed rate increase.

Proponents of the rate advances declared (1) present revenues of the railroads are inadequate to meet the generally advancing costs of labor and supplies, (2) that the increase will be "for the general good of the country, and (3) it is necessary to insure the continued operation of the railroads under private ownership.

Opposing witnesses had previously attacked the proposal on the grounds that it will deal a crippling blow to business and force manufacturers and shippers to resort to trucks for transportation. Many of the witnesses who testified yesterday afternoon represented the same types of industries as those who had attacked the proposed increase.

Session Concluded.

Although the hearing had been previously scheduled to continue for three days, Commissioner M. M. Caskie closed the meeting after three days of testimony. A similar hearing will begin Monday in New Orleans, as one of a series of regional meetings before the Interstate Commerce Commission makes a final decision.

F. W. Beazley, president of the Atlantic Company, of Atlanta, said he was convinced many people who would prefer that the suggested increase be refused are laboring under the delusion that the railroads are perpetually solvent and cannot fail.

"One who has followed even slightly the operation of the railroads during the past 10 years cannot help but appreciate the problem of the railroads and the necessity for the 15 per cent increase in rates; if for no other cause than the dire economic effects of partially unregulated truck and bus competition and the many advantages that trucks and buses have received from the hands of the various states," he pointed out.

Best For Country.

R. H. White Jr., president of the Southern Wood Preserving Company, of Atlanta, said it is for the best interests of the country as a whole that the railroads be given immediate relief in the form of increased revenues in order to preserve their solvency, and continue under private ownership and operation.

A majority of witnesses represented firms which pay from $250,000 to $1,000,000 annually in transportation charges. W. N. McGehee, counsel for the railroads said. Numerous Chambers of Commerce from all over the southeast also were represented.

G. G. Ward, president of the First National Bank of Leesburg, Fla., declared that "if our present capitalistic system is to endure, we must have a balanced budget in business as well as in government," adding that "the railroads are helpless in controlling their major operating expenses and other fixed charges and the only relief which they can seek is through increased charges for their services."

Atlantans Testify.

Several Atlantans appeared before the commission in behalf of the railroads.

J. H. Alexander, president of George Mose Clothing Company, said "it occurs to me the request of the railroads is fair and justifiable, especially in view of substantial wage advances and higher material cost which have placed the railroads in a position of being unable to continue their former enormous purchasing power."

"In my opinion," he continued, "to restore this purchasing power to the roads would immediately stimulate business generally which is much needed at the present time."

Describing the railroads as "the most important factor in our entire economic life," Norman E. Elsas, of the Fulton Bag & Cotton Mills, said that "since the railroads are subject to mounting expenses of all types and vigorous competi-

Puzzles Over Upside Down Auto Plates

When license plates are upside down, what do you do? That's what W. M. Turner, veteran superintendent of The Constitution press room, is wondering. "It's a puzzler, sure enough," he commented.

And here are the license plates. According to the registration certificate, they should be 5500B. Apparently the convict who made the plates at Tattall prison wasn't interested in his work.

tion, and are limited in the volume of business they may do, I feel that it is a vital necessity that their existence be preserved."

Other Atlantans making similar statements included Edgar Chambers, president of Parks-Chambers, Inc.; E. H. Cone Jr., chairman of the board of directors of the S. S. S. Company; Robert Strickland, president of the Trust Company of Georgia.

Supports Increase.

Churmond Chatham, president of the Chatham Manufacturing Company, Winston-Salem and Elkins, N. C., said "while it will be costly to our company it would seem that a fair addition to the present rates would add to general prosperity and work to the common good."

Earlier in the day a group of farmers from South Carolina appeared before the commission to urge that "trucking crops" be exempted from the rate increase. They explained that any increase in freight rates would work an immediate hardship upon the small-scale, unorganized farmers of the south.

Pointing out that there are thousands of farmers in South Carolina who "need sheets as well as shirts," they declared that "the farmers can spend the money they now have to better advantage than the railroads can if they took it away from the farmers."

ICC SETS RATE PARITY HEARING DATE

Hearing on a plea of southeastern governors for lower freight rates on commodities to place the south on a parity with other sections of the country has been set for March 28 before Interstate Commerce Commissioner William E. Lee at the Thomas Jefferson hotel in Birmingham.

Judge Edgar Watkins, counsel for the recently organized freight rate commission, was informed of the date yesterday. The Birmingham hearing is independent of the I. C. C. hearing, which was concluded yesterday in Atlanta.

Governor Rivers, Governor Bibb Graves, of Alabama, and Governor Olin D. Johnson, of South Carolina, have been leaders in the movement.

FARM BILL PARITY DEFEAT EXPECTED

Agreement Would Limit All Payments for Conservation of Soil.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—(AP)—Senate and house conferees said they were near an agreement today to strike out the provision for "parity" payments in the farm bill and limit all benefits to payments for "conservation."

This would mean that the conferees would adopt the house program for compensating farmers who complied with the "ever-normal" granary regulations. It was said that federal outlays, under this program, would not exceed the $440,000,000 earmarked for agriculture in the President's budget message to congress.

Mr. Roosevelt's request for economy, leaders said, largely was responsible for the swing of some conferees from their own bill, which provided "parity" payments on cotton, corn and wheat.

The senate program, which placed no limit on the use of funds made available for farm benefits, was estimated to cost from $500,000,000 to more than $1,000,000,000 a year.

BORAH DENOUNCES ANTI-LYNCH BILL

10 a. m. (Atlanta time) tomorrow. Senator Connally, Democrat, Texas, protested in vain.

Speech-making usually tests over the week end.

If speech-making against the bill continued into next week, Barkley said, he would consider calling night sessions.

Senator Van Nuys, Democrat, Indiana, author of the anti-lynching measure, expressed confidence that long senate sessions soon would wear down the opposition speech-makers. He predicted a vote in a week to 10 days.

Sectional Bill. Borah declared the legislation was a "sectional bill" which would undermine states' rights and condemn the south as being unworthy of self-government.

"While the north lost eight negroes by lynching last year," Borah said, "the north lost 300 white people by the activities of thugs."

"I do not believe," he continued, "that the authors of this measure would take advantage of the horror we all feel for the crime of lynching to strike a blow at the dust system of government, but that is what is happening."

"We should admit that the south is dealing with this question. We should admit that the men and women of the south are just as patriotic as anybody else."

After Borah had finished speaking, Senator McKellar, Democrat, Tennessee, took the floor in opposition to the bill, saying negroes in the south had made rapid progress.

"It is claimed that the southern states don't enforce their laws against this horrible crime of lynching," McKellar said, "but the figures absolutely disprove that charge."

"Where other crimes have increased, the crime of lynching has steadily decreased."

Not on Best of Terms. Senator Thomas, Democrat, Utah, tried to get McKellar to admit there was a difference between mob lynchings and gangster killings. The soft-spoken westerner contended lynchings were an attempt to warn others against crimes, while mob gangster killings were reprisals.

McKellar denied this, saying the crimes were precisely the same.

McKellar told the senate he and the Governor of Tennessee were not on the best of terms. He said the law "would step in and take the Governor of a state and fine him from $2,000 to $10,000 and put him in jail for five years."

Pausing for a moment, McKellar then added:

"The Governor of my state is not very friendly to me and I am not exceedingly friendly to him, but I am not that much opposed to him."

"I would not have the Governor of my state even though I do not care particularly for him, put in jail for five years because a lynching took place in Tennessee; and yet I want to say that I am so much opposed to lynching that if I were Governor of my state I would never permit a lynching to take place in it."

WAGE CUT TO BE ASKED OF HOSEIERY WORKERS

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 7.—(AP)—The Record said tonight 13,000 union hoseiery workers would be asked by union officials at a meeting tomorrow to take a wage cut to keep the industry in Philadelphia.

The workers will be asked, the paper said, to approve a return in the wage scale that expired last August. This is about 7 per cent lower than what was in effect.

Veterans of Gray Found Contented In Soldiers' Home

Veterans residing at the Confederate Soldiers' home are comfortable and content and well quartered, a legislative committee reported to the house of representatives yesterday after investigating rumors that the old soldiers were inconvenienced.

The inquiry resulted from a resolution asking the investigation introduced by Representative Barrett, of Richmond county. Representatives Kendrick, of Fulton; Culpepper, of Fayette; Weaver, of Bibb; Leonard, of Muscogee, and Manly, of Calhoun county, were the investigators.

They reported $12,729 of the Governor's emergency fund had been spent repairing and renovating the old soldiers' home and remodeling the old hospital building quarters for the military department. The state highway patrol is quartered in the veterans' building.

BOND HEARING SET IN DAUGHTRY CASE

Jurist Who Recently Refused Release of Trio Disqualifies Self.

SYLVANIA, Jan. 7.—(AP)—Solicitor General W. G. Neville said today the prosecution in the strangely tangled Charlie Daughtry slaying case would again resist any effort to free defendants on bond at a hearing set before Judge R. N. Hardeman, of Louisville, at 10 o'clock next Friday morning.

Judge Hardeman agreed today to hear the case in the place of Judge William Woodrum, who disqualifies himself because of relationship to the wife of Charlie Daughtry.

Five Are Accused. Accused in the weird turpentine swamp killing of the wealthy Screven county landowner are his daughter, Marie Daughtry, who left home as a girl and returned only to answer the slaying charge; Albert Cobb, Savannah attorney; Joe Newton, Bloomingdale merchant and a brother-in-law of Cobb; Newton's son, Ralph, and a distant cousin, Osborne Newton.

Judge G. C. Dekle, of Millen, chief defense lawyer, said he once more would ask bond for Cobb, Newton and Ralph Newton, and that bond also would be sought for Osborne Newton. No attempt, he added, would be made to bring about release on bond of Miss Daughtry.

A move to obtain bond for Cobb, Joe Newton and Ralph Newton was refused last month by Judge Woodrum because he was disqualified himself. The state at the time declined to disclose the evidence by which it seeks to link the accused with the killing.

Grand Jury Probe Slated. Trial originally was set for January 3, but Judge Woodrum granted a continuance at the request of Solicitor General Neville pending further investigation by the grand jury.

Neville said that body would meet February 7 and a new trial date would be arranged some time after it concludes its further inquiry. He would not hint the nature of the investigation.

Daughtry was found shot to death last September 22. The state charged he was slain in what appeared to be a "plot to get rid" of him for a share of his estate. The five accused persons have asserted they are innocent.

CARLISLE TO SEEK SEAT HELD BY COX

Cairo Judge To Run Against Camilla Congressman.

CAIRO, Jan. 7.—(AP)—Judge Ira Carlisle, of the city court here, announced today he would be a candidate for congress from the second Georgia district, in opposition to Representative E. E. Cox, of Camilla.

"In accordance with my statement last March and because of the continued opposition of Congressmen Cox to the program of President Roosevelt and the Democratic administration," he said in a formal statement, "I have concluded that I shall make the race for congress, and my formal announcement and platform will be made public at the proper time."

HALLS ARE FREED BY COURT ORDER

Judge Refuses To Revoke Suspended Sentences and Terms Evidence 'Weak.'

Bud and Ben Hall were free yesterday after Superior Judge E. E. Pomeroy refused to revoke five-year suspended chain gang sentences against them.

The Atlanta lottery operators were two of 21 who pleaded guilty October 22 and received suspended sentences. In the present hearing, both were charged with violating the conditions of their probation.

Evidence Held Weak. Judge Pomeroy, in denying a motion by Assistant Solicitor E. E. Andrews to revoke the suspended sentences, said the evidence against the two was "weak and unsatisfactory."

Andrews had sought to prove in the two-day hearings that the brothers had conspired to revive the fallen numbers game and that Bud had beaten up a negro.

W. R. Bentley, defense attorney, used 24 witnesses to show an alibi for both of his clients, proving they were somewhere else when the criminal activities alleged against them occurred.

Evidence Rebutted. Of Bud's trial, the judge said: "The evidence against him is rebutted by six witnesses who make an alibi satisfactory as to his presence at another place at that time. Many of the witnesses against him have had criminal records."

Of Ben's trial the order read: "Only one witness connected him in any direct way with lottery, and that only incidentally. Nine reputable witnesses swore to his buying a filling station on Lee street and his continuous personal operation of it since that time."

Orders denying motions for revocation of both brothers' suspensions concluded: "Not being satisfied in my own mind as to any illegal activities on his part since October 22, 1937, the motion is denied."

FARMERS WARNED ON COTTON LOANS

U. S. Will Prosecute Irregular Practices.

The government will prosecute those guilty of irregularities in obtaining cotton loans, Erie Cooke, Georgia agency manager of the Commodity Credit Corporation, warned yesterday.

Cooke pointed out that cotton loans are available only to those who produced the cotton and who own it at the time the loan contract is signed. If a person has sold the cotton, he cannot borrow on the cotton. The person to whom he has sold, nor can he borrow on cotton bought to replace the cotton produced by him, it was explained.

A number of persons in Arkansas have been arrested due to fraudulent practices which have come to light in connection with loans on the 1937 crop, Cooke said.

Note how very easy this dress is to make and how lovely it is when using plain and print. The little jacket can also be worn with other dresses. For this outfit choose a pretty white or brown linen and a bright print of the same fabric—or shark-skin, with contrasting plain color in this same popular summer fabric. You can use this pattern also for a town costume this spring, using a sheer wool with a challis print jacket.

PLEASANT HOMES

She Combines Home, Family and Business Career.

She's a chic little person who combines home, family and business career as smoothly as you please and has tossed off a successful book of verse on the side. We've known her rather casually for years and admired her, so we were very much interested to receive this letter from her.

"I wish you would give me suggestions about my own decoration problem. You may remember that I told you we'd just finished building a modern house. Well, the living room gives us a little worry because plans for specially built modern furniture would cost $1,500 to carry through and that is several times what we wanted to spend. Our living room is 16x25 feet, and we have here blond modern maple furniture including trestle table, book shelves, sofa and occasional table. Our windows face an extraordinary view that looks for all the world like a Peter Breughel painting and we don't like to neglect it, though on the opposite wall is a very cheerful fireplace. I enclose a sketch. Will you suggest an arrangement of furniture? And what colors for the walls, keeping in mind the fact that the room is virtually all windows. We will have two or three interesting abstract paintings. But we haven't done anything about rugs, colors, etc. (with the exception of draperies in natural cotton tufted in white). Have you any nice inexpensive suggestions to make?"

Beige and Copper.
We're wondering if something rather exciting couldn't be done in monotonous in soft dull blue since there is so much light here—a grey-green-blue the walls a very pale version, the carpet and upholstery deeper with maybe a chair or two in a dusty coral for contrast. Or go all beige and see how perfectly grand that will be with accents of large copper trays and jugs. Still another idea would be to use bold coloring on the walls—emerald green maybe. Then natural to browns in tweed textures for the other things in the room and a striped fabric for one chair for contrast. Why not have a pair of easy chairs flanking the fireplace, then a big deep sofa at right angles to the best windows—then it would include a vista of view as well as fireplace.

MY DAY

By Eleanor Roosevelt

WASHINGTON, Thursday.—I came back to Washington last night on the midnight train fully expecting to give my entire attention from now on to the social season!

I found my little cousin in my sitting room this morning and we enjoyed our breakfast together and had a little talk about the holidays. Before I had really settled down, the telephone rang with the sad news that Mr. Henry Nesbitt, the custodian of the White House, had died in the night. His wife, who is our housekeeper, was a friend and co-worker of mine in Hyde Park before they came to help us here.

In spite of the fact that he had been ill for some time, I knew it would be a great shock to Mrs. Nesbitt. He will be buried in Hyde Park on Saturday morning, and she tells me she would like to come back to work on Saturday morning. I know well that when you have watched over some one and had them on your mind for a long time, there is a greater sense of loneliness when the end comes, but I think she is right in insisting that to get back to work is the best thing for her. It is the only way for most of us to meet our sorrows.

I went up to see Mrs. Nesbitt and ever since, I have been busy making various arrangements and catching up on innumerable appointments and letters which require immediate attention.

I have just read an article in a weekly magazine, written by Doris Fleenor about "Missy." I think it is a delightful piece of work. I even like the title, a duplicate of one of those innumerable omissions with which everyone in the family is familiar: "Missy, do this, F. D. R."

It is a rather rare thing for one woman to write such an appreciative and understanding article about another woman. Usually, I think a woman will write with more enthusiasm about some man whom she has interviewed, and yet only a woman could really understand the exceptional qualifications to fill successfully a position such as "Missy" has held for so many years.

She has done an interesting job in an interesting way. She proves what I have often said, that men who do important things in the world nearly always have a woman somewhere near at hand who helps out with the details of the job, however big that job may be.

This is true, of course, of everyone who does a great many things, man or woman. If some really able writer does not come along soon and write up the person who makes living possible for me, I am afraid I shall have to do it myself!

In spite of the more serious side of life, the social season must go on, so tonight the dinner to the Vice President takes place. Everyone knows the Vice President likes to go to bed early, but he is such a genial soul he gives one the feeling he is glad to have a chance to talk with you, even though the hour may not be one which he would choose by preference.

PAGING PROFESSOR WALKER

HALL.

Newspaper clipping without a date (sent to me in 1929):

PROVES ARSENIC THEORY.

To prove his contention against the popular belief that arsenic poisoning can be absorbed through the skin, Professor Walker Hall, the distinguished English toxicologist, faced death recently. He rubbed a fatal dose of arsenic over his hand and waited a half-hour for the result. Nothing happened, so he repeated the experiment and proved his theory.

The item was printed in a prominent Canadian paper. Next time I call on the editor of that paper I'm going to try and get a lead which will help me to find Professor Walker Hall and shake the hand that was rubbed with the fatal dose of arsenic. Also I'm going to try and find out what theory the professor proved.

Even if I never find Professor Hall and satisfy myself that the experiment did him no harm, I'm willing and ready at any time to lend, say, one-half of my skin, for any such experiment with any poison that does not burn or destroy the skin, under the control of any reputable scientific investigator or group of investigators—provided I may have complete control of the ventilation during the experiment, so that I may be assured I shall not inhale any poison.

Oh, yes, there is one other condition on which I should insist, and that is, whatever the outcome of the experiment or test, we shall agree in advance that an unreserved report of it shall be published; and if I am made ill or poisoned I will concede that my attitude or teaching of the impermeability of the skin was wrong and harp no more on that point, but on the other hand, if the medicine, drug or poison applied fails to produce any appreciable effect on me, the "authorities" who maintain that the skin absorbs certain chemicals, substances or poisons will cease and desist from such teaching and acknowledge that their notion about that was based on inaccurate observation and slovenly thinking.

YOUR FIGURE, MADAME!

By IDA JEAN KAIN.

This is one of the favorite exercises of lovely Lucille Bremer of the Radio City Rockettes—and she has a 24-inch waistline!

EXCESS WAISTLINE INCHES PAD YOUR AGE.

We grow old by inches, not by years . . . and we grow old first in the middle of our figures. Age in itself does not change the figure. It's what we let happen over a period of years that does the damage.

In the youthful figure there is a clearly defined waistline with an eight to 10-inch difference between the bust and waist measurements, but how quickly this difference diminishes! In the mature figure the average difference between the two measurements is around five inches. So it is the thick, stodgy midsection that suggests maturity, and the figure that is slim and supple as a willow is the figure of youth.

There is no physiological reason for this excess waistline padding. Of all the measurements, the waistline is the most malleable, and if it is susceptible to fat, the same is true of exercise. With exercises which stretch and squeeze the waist, you can easily slim an inch off a pudgy waist in two weeks. Today's streamline measure, illustrated by the lovely Lucille Bremer, one of the Radio City Music Hall Rockettes, makes an excellent beginning for your 1934 figure program. Check your interpretation of this exercise by the following description:

Movement: Continue the upward stretch of the body and bend at the waist in the same direction as the outstretched leg. Repeat five times on one side, then change position so as to bend in the other direction. This is one of the effective waistline exercises given in the leaflet, "Streamline the Midsection," which should be included in your daily program.

With a thickening waist there is usually a tendency to flabbiness of the abdominal muscles, which allows the tummy to protrude. I am sorry to tell you, but it is not as easy to discipline this front line. Unremitting exercise is needed to firm the tummy muscles, but the following exercise will help to pull those lazy muscles back into line.

Position: Standing with back to wall, lower abdominal muscles pulled up and in.

Movement: Keeping the small of the back against the wall, slide down until you are in a squatting position. Repeat the exercise six times, always keeping the small of the back against the wall. This requires special effort in the part of the lower abdominal muscles and is effective in firming the abdominal girdle.

With a daily program of waistline exercise you can keep those inches in check and have a figure that is flexible and slim regardless of your age.

Hollywood Today

By SHEILAH GRAHAM.

RADIO'S CONQUEST OF FILMDOM.

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 7.—Hollywood's biggest building will soon be open—the new house of Columbia (and I don't mean the picture company), situated on Gowen and Sunset boulevard. The National Broadcasting Company, not to be outdone, is planning an equally large extension of its present studios, and meanwhile has commandeered every available space in Hollywood. All of which means one thing—that, in spite of the setback to Hollywood radio perpetrated a few Sundays ago by Mae West (in her Adam and Eve skit with Don Ameche), broadcasts from the coast will soon rival in importance and number those from New York and Chicago.

Practically everyone you can name here—including Mickey Mouse and Donald Duck—is doing a weekly chore of ethering. Sunday is the big day for Hollywood radio, with the following headliners brightening the air waves: Edgar Bergen, Dummy-Bright-Boy Charlie McCarthy, Nelson Eddy, Dorothy Lamour, Jack Benny, Mary Livingstone, Kenny Baker, Andy Devine, Phil Baker, Lucille Ball, Jeanette MacDonald, Conrad Nagel and guest stars, Tyrone Power and his leading film females, Jean Hersholt, and new recruit Mickey Mouse.

Monday tuners-in can hear at least two big stars introduced by Master of Ceremonies Cecil B. De Mille—some of them, Clark Gable, Marlene Dietrich, Ginger Rogers, Carole Lombard, Robert Taylor, George Raft, Herbert Marshall and George Burns and Gracie Allen, and Tony Martin.

On Tuesday, there is a choice between the Hollywood Mardi Gras, featuring Charles Butterworth, Lanny Ross and a new star each week, Jack Oakie, Stuart Erwin and Al Jolson, Martha Raye, Parkyakarkus, Eddie G. Robinson and Claire Trevor.

Wednesday is another big radio day, with Fred Allen's Town Hall, Warner's Hollywood Parade, with Dick Powell, Priscilla Lane and a batch of the studio's stars, Eddie Cantor, Deanna Durbin, Pinky Tomlin and Gertrude Niesen with Olson and Johnson.

Thursday's radio children get most of the M-G-M. contract list on the "Good News of 1933" broadcast. Also Bing Crosby and Bob Burns.

Friday and Saturday night Hollywood Hotel, Jack Haley's Log Cabin, with Wendy Barrie, Warren Hull and Virginia Verill.

Deals that are still in the air include one for Gene Autry and Gail Patrick.

There are only three major Hollywood personalities who have not and will not broadcast for commercial sponsors—Greta Garbo, Charles Chaplin and Shirley Temple (whose mother has refused on her behalf $15,000 for one appearance).

Radio is no longer considered pin money for the stars. It is a substantial form of income, very far exceeding that earned before the cameras—as witness the $4,000 weekly offered Miss Patrick and the $150,000 per annum waved before Jane Withers' childish—but excited—eyes. Clark Gable's radio fee hovers between $5,000 and $7,000 per performance. Claudette Colbert, Carole Lombard, Ginger Rogers, Myrna Loy, William Powell, Joan Crawford and all the top-ranking stars are rewarded with $5,000 for reading manuscripts for approximately 30 minutes. (Carole Lombard recently received this sum for only 12 minutes on the air.)

Studio-conducted radio programs are not quite as profitable—the M-G-M. "Good News" broadcast costs the studio $15,000 a week to stage and is in the red in spite of the smallest sums awarded the performers. And it is doubtful whether Warner's fare better.

The most popular stars of Hollywood broadcasts, Jack Benny and Charlie McCarthy, were in the air business before striking the film pot of gold. Benny's record is five and one-half years. McCarthy came to the fore, like so many others here, on the Rudy Vallee program in 1936. Don Ameche is another radio veteran who started at $50 a week several years ago on the First Nighter show. Radio listeners have been laughing at Burns and Allen for four years now. Cecil B. De Mille has proved he was not merely a whisper that passes in the night—his radio producer's career started in June, 1933.

and is going stronger than ever. Phil Baker has been ethering five years (his latest picture, "Goldwyn Follies," is near the releasing stage).

Radio newcomers earning plaudits in the nicest way—via the taking up of options—include Eddie G. Robinson, who has scored one of the biggest personal hits of this season; Martha Raye, Charlie Butternorth, Jack Haley and Tyrone Power (he began his radio career in Chicago two years ago—reading funnies to the kiddies!).

At one time there was a question whether radio helped or hurt film personalities. But there is no doubt nowadays. For confirmation, ask Deanna Durbin, who owes the birth of her screen career to her enthusiastic radio audience, or Charlie Butterworth, whose screen popularity was at a standstill until he hit the air waves with Fred Astaire last year.

And that reminds me. There are a handful of Hollywoodites who went, talked and were disillusioned after a joust with the ether—and swear they are through. Mr. Astaire particularly, who found himself in the unhappy position of giving most of his radio earnings to the government.

TIPS ON LOOKING LIKE A MILLION ON A MODEST CLOTHES BUDGET

"Corinne always looks like a million," the men say. "I'd be asked places, too," says Miss Frump, "if I could afford to dress like that."

Miss Frump is tragically wrong. In clothes, knowing how counts more than money. If your colors are right for your type, if lines and trimmings hit you where they should—you're well dressed no matter what the price tags say. If those things are wrong—well, French labels don't help. So let's take a look at Corinne's wardrobe and see how this clever dressing is done.

You notice she always wears some shade of red or green tinged with yellow. This year it's brick dust, henna, forest green. Why? These colors give a lovely glow to her sallow skin. She's found, too, that she can use the same brown accessories with all three colors, a saving!

Do her hats always have a forward tilt to the 'rimming or a little brim? Those tricks make her prominent nose look smaller.

Does she look lovely in a style you had to throw away? Could it be that the short waist is just right for her slim lines—that you need a low waistline because you've a large bosom? Yes!

Let our 40-page booklet, "Secrets of Being Well Dressed," show you how to look your best. Color chart. Tips on fabrics, styles.

FRIENDLY COUNSEL

By CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

Problems of general interest submitted by readers will be discussed in this column. Correspondence invited. Your name held in confidence. Write Miss Chatfield, care The Atlanta Constitution.

After reading a great gross of letters from disillusioned heartless wives and mothers I am on the point of concluding that nine-tenths of the mental anguish women suffer in this life is directly traceable to their feminine possessiveness. To the average woman's mind, love spells possession. Whom she loves she owns; husband and children.

It's the misapprehension that's responsible for her getting at and going to pieces, for her dowdy housekeeping, her poor dinners, her nagging tongue, her weeping and wailing at being neglected. Offense rather than love when Mr. Husband steps out with another dame, it is Mrs. Wife's possessiveness that has set the stage for the interlude.

A woman gets married and immediately she begins to behave as though the preacher had handed the husband over to her body and soul. Then she sets out to make him over to suit her taste and convenience. She expects him to eat the same dishes she had in her girlhood home, take her family to his heart, accept her friends and like them, fall in line with her way of life and she doesn't want to hear a peep of protest out of him.

If he has the temerity to suggest a card game with the boys or a hunting trip that doesn't include her, she cuts up as though he had slapped her in the face and thrown her out the back door. The nerve of his liking his chums over any fun without her! Why, she argues, it wouldn't occur to her to plan a party and leave him out! It's unthinkable that he could be such a traitor!

Once a possessive female has a man under pledge, she has darkened her thought that she can ever again be in competition with other female charmers. Actually the competition may be keener after than before the ceremony, largely depending on how she performs. For, sad to say, boys will be boys and they like their ladies dainty and sweet, streamlined, mild mannered, soft voiced and agreeable. All of which the ladies are with a bang before marriage.

Matched with a featherweight bride, a husband doesn't consider it cricket for her to add avoirdupois that puts her in the heavyweight class. Lured into matrimony by sweet nothings whispered in his ear, fed with flattery, smothered with love and kisses, the man isn't prepared for the tactics of a keeper who criticizes him, accuses him, nags him, turns on the tears and threatens to go home to mama. Yet this is exactly what the possessive wife demands the husband, if and when he doesn't submit his will to hers, come up to specifications as set out by her in her dreams.

Then the children come along and she picks up speed. By the time they are grown she's got into full stride, tormenting them with stories of her great sacrifices for them and the debt of gratitude they owe her in consequence. If her husband has passed out by the primrose route or if the angels have rescued him from his bondage the children catch its full strength. Daughter can't leave home at night to fill a date. Son can't get serious with a girl for fear of breaking mother's heart and if either of them has a will of his own and attempts to live his own life, mother is a martyr, despised, rejected, neglected.

Unfortunately the average female is under the misapprehension that love and possession are synonymous. She has many

Of interest in Georgia, Tennessee and Florida is the marriage of Miss Mary Eliza Lee, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Lee, of Bristol, Tenn., to Forrest Hudson Beville, son of J. P. Beville, of Atlanta.

The ceremony took place at 5 o'clock, at the home of the Rev. W. L. Cuts, 515 Manorford road, in the presence of the immediate family and close friends.

The bride, who is an attractive blond, was smartly attired in a becoming black wool suit cut along single lines, with the jacket featuring the wide shoulder effect. She wore a black imported felt hat and matching accessories. A corsage of gardenias completed her ensemble.

The couple left for a wedding trip, after which they will reside at 288 Bloomfield avenue, Athens, where Mr. Beville is connected with the Larus & Brothers Tobacco Company.

SCHOOL FUND TILT
OPENED IN AUGUSTAChatham's Council Attacks Equalization Law as 'Unconstitutional.'

AUGUSTA, Jan. 7.—(AP)—I. S. Peebles Jr., of Augusta, representing Chatham county, today attacked the state equalization law of 1937 as "capricious and unconstitutional."

Appearing in Chatham county's suit to force the state board of education to allot Chatham schools a larger share of state funds, Peebles argued the law constituted with a constitutional provision for uniform application of laws by providing different bases of state aid for various school systems.

This discriminates against independent systems which are counted as urban, although they have a number of rural schools normally allowed a higher allocation of state funds than urban schools, he charged.

This is the second action by a county system seeking to set aside the new board of education system for determining county shares of school funds. Bibb county recently lost a similar case in Fulton superior court and an appeal now is pending before the supreme court.

NASH CONFISCATED

NEW'S SHIP LINES

30-Month Term Given Also

on Charges of Treason, Law Violation.

HAMBURG, Germany, Jan. 7.—(AP)—A special court today sentenced Arnold Bernstein, German Jewish ship merchant, to 30 months in jail and fined him 1,000,000 marks ($400,000) for treason and violation of German's stringent foreign exchange laws.

The Hanseatic court, which listened to a five-week recital of complicated financial technicalities, emphasized Bernstein had been tried not as a Jew but as businessman who had disregarded the law.

Bernstein already has turned over the Red Star and Arnold Bernstein lines of which he was operating head, to a managing-director named by the German government. In addition to loss of his business, the heavy fine and prison sentence, he was deprived of his citizenship for two years.

His confiscated property was believed to cover the cost of the fine since the verdict said nothing of how the $400,000 was to be collected.

The 49-year-old World War armaments officer and holder of a German war decoration was charged with espionage, treason, and concealment of foreign currencies, unlawfully disposing of foreign currencies and abetting such transactions.

SIX SUSPECTS HELD AS POLICE ATTEMPT TO HALT ROBBERIES

8 Burglaries and Holdups Reported by Atlantans Yesterday.

Six burglar suspects were arrested here yesterday as Atlanta detectives sought to break up a series of petty thefts and holdups. At least eight burglaries and holdups were reported, police said. S. C. Bradley, of 300 Washington street, a painter, and Ed Phillips, also of Washington street, were arrested by police in connection with the $405 burglary of materials and cash from the Dixie Paint & Wall Paper Company, 73 Ivy street. Detectives claim confessions from both.

W. I. Johnson, treasurer of the company, told detectives he was called to the office Thursday night by someone who reported a door open. Johnson said a checkup revealed someone had remained in the store when it was closed for the day.

Pawning Supplies. Bradley was arrested as he attempted to pawn some paint supplies. Policeman J. C. Askew reported. Bradley implicated Phillips, Askew said. Both men are being held on suspicion of burglary.

Two negroes were arrested by Detective E. S. Acree after one allegedly confessed to four street car holdups during December. Police claim a confession from Leonard Adams, 18, of 253 Chestnut street. Also arrested was James McHenry, 19, of 299 Cypress terrace, who maintains innocence. Both men are being held on suspicion of robbery.

Negro Is Shot. An alleged burglar, William Lamar, 19, negro, was shot and critically wounded when he broke into a grocery store at 79 Davis street, police reported. The shot was fired by Alvin Parks, operator of the store, who was awakened as he slept next door.

James Lewis, negro, was seized by Albert Felton, of 48 Decatur street, as he dropped from an air vent into a bakery where Felton was sleeping. Lewis was arrested on suspicion.

The national guard headquarters reported the theft of a $150 typewriter from the offices in the municipal auditorium, police said. Approximately $100 worth of

Aid Fails To Save Snowbound Mother

HALIFAX, N. S., Jan. 7.—(Canadian Press)—Mrs. Joseph McNeil, mother of a 12-day-old baby, died today despite medical aid made possible by a mercy flight to her home in snow-bound Cape Breton.

A doctor and a nurse had flown to aid the woman after a snowstorm had prevented an Acadian physician from reaching her by horse and sleigh.

After Mrs. McNeil died, the Rev. Father Paul MacNeil, parish priest for St. Margaret's district, telegraphed to Halifax that the community was "incensed over the situation."

He demanded a doctor be sent to the area "at once to forestall future incidents that might prove fatal."

children's clothing was taken by burglars from a store operated by Mrs. A. Morris at 237 Peters street, detectives said.

The Rev. H. P. Bagwell, of 28 Formwalt street, asked police to "prevent" burglars from taking gas from his car each night. The minister said ten gallons had disappeared during the past week.

U. S., GREAT BRITAIN PLAN TRADE PACT

Formal Announcement Made of 'Intention To Negotiate' Agreement in March.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—(AP)—The United States and Great Britain took a seven-league step toward economic co-operation today by announcing formal "intention to negotiate" a trade agreement.

Secretary of State Hull's announcement disclosed that the British colonial empire and Newfoundland are to be included in the accord. Excluded are the Dominions, Ireland and India.

March 14 was set for the beginning of public hearings on imports and exports suggested for inclusion. Hull published a 47-page list of more than 1,000 imports on which tariff concessions may be granted.

February 19 was fixed as the closing date for the submission of briefs by importers, exporters, producers or manufacturers and for applications to be heard at the public meetings.

Secretary Hull said a British delegation of trade experts would sail from Britain around the first of February for the United States to begin discussions with United States experts.

A list of exports on which Britain may grant tariff concessions was not issued here. This was left to the British government to give out.

Agreement With Canada. A similar announcement is expected shortly with regard to a new trade agreement with Canada. A State Department official said it was believed South Africa and later Australia would follow.

Concessions up to 50 per cent reduction in tariff duties may be granted on British imports into this country. Other concessions may be made by "binding" tariffs at existing rates or "binding" on the free list those products already there.

The trade agreement with Great Britain, if successfully completed, may be regarded as the climax of Secretary Hull's economic program. The United Kingdom absorbed $440,122,000 worth of United States exports in 1936 and sold $200,385,000 worth of goods.

United States exports to Britain constituted 18 per cent of the total to all countries, and United States imports 8 per cent of the total from all countries.

Annulment Is Granted

MARGARET ESKEW.

CHILD BRIDE FREED BY COURT DECREE

Margaret Eskew, Married at 13, Says She Tired of Wedded Life.

Margaret Eskew, married 15 months ago at the age of 13, was granted an annulment yesterday in Fulton superior court by Judge Virlyn B. Moore.

She was married to John Victory Snell, 19, in a double wedding in which Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Cochran Jr., 19 and 13, also participated. The Cochrans have continued their marriage and now have a two-month-old baby.

Mrs. Lena Smith, Miss Eskew's mother, filed a petition for the annulment, setting forth the girl was under legal age to contract marriage and that no ratification was made of the marriage after she reached 14. Under Georgia law such ratification would make the marriage legal.

"He was not cruel to me," Miss Eskew told the court. "I just didn't like being married." She added she had been married for six weeks after the wedding. The petition stated she lived with her husband one month and 13 days before separation. Only evidence presented besides the petition and Miss Eskew's testimony was her birth certificate.

After her separation, she moved to the home of an aunt at 884 Virginia avenue, College Park, where she said yesterday she would continue to make her home.

HOOVER GROUNDING INQUIRY IS STARTED

165 Members of Crew Arrive in U. S., Indignant at Drinking Charges.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 7.—(AP)—A special marine investigating board of the Department of Commerce met here today to inquire into the grounding of the palatial liner President Hoover on a coral reef off Honolulu island December 10.

Captain William Fisher, chairman of the board, said it would seek to determine the probable cause of the Hoover's grounding and consider possible charges against the licensed personnel of the ship's crew.

The Hoover's 453 passengers and crew of 408 were removed safely and recently the Dollar Line announced it had abandoned the $8,000,000 ship to underwriters.

One hundred sixty-five members of the Hoover's crew arrived here today aboard the President McKinley, indignant at charges of drunkenness, molestation of women and rioting.

Sam Cohen, steward's delegate, displayed clippings from Manila newspapers and labeled them "baseless fabrications."

"We took off 100 persons in less than nine hours," Cohen said, and then asked: "Does that sound as if the men were drinking?"

The report that crew members broke into women's quarters, Cohen attributed to hysteria and the fact the last load of passengers was landed after dark.

"There was a shipwreck and there wasn't any time for knocking on doors," Cohen said.

NEGLIGENCE DENIED BY SHIP'S OFFICERS

BALTIMORE, Jan. 7.—(AP)—Three officers of the steamer City of Baltimore, destroyed by fire last July 29, denied before a marine inspection board today they were guilty of negligence in their actions during the blaze.

Three persons, including two crew members, were drowned attempting to escape the blaze, which burned the steamer to the water's edge in the Chesapeake bay below Baltimore. There were about 50 passengers and 53 seamen aboard.
